Hurricane Agnes Dies In Georgia; 18 Persons Dead

APALACHICOLA, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Agnes has gasped her last over backwoods Georgia after a collision with the Florida Panhandle that left homes uprooted, roads awash and millions of dollars in damage.

Agnes, the first of the season's hurricanes, killed 18 persons, injured more than 100 and forced thousands of families from their homes as she rampaged north from Cuba.

Although an 80-mile-per-hour parent of ravaging tornadoes early Monday, the storm was reduced to a disorganized mass by midnight and was sweeping across South Georgia with 45 m.p.h. winds.

One 15-mile stretch bordering the Gulf of Mexico from Carabelle to Eastpoint, Fla., was lined with demolished homes. Parts of U. S. 98—including much of the causeway between Eastpoint and Apalachicola—were eaten away.

"I gave up counting how many houses were destroyed and just put 'most of them' on my report," said Red Cross volunteer Beth Henson.

Many beachfront houses were reduced to little more than rubble.

Herbert Chipman whose house was ruined, said, "The waters just came up and came in. I don't know how much of my house is left."

While Agnes was churning across the Gulf toward the Panhandle, a backlash slammed into the Tampa Bay area, inflicting $12 million damage on

U.N. Council Nears Accord On Skyjacking

Airlines Resume Regular Flights After Walkout

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
U.N. Security Council members were reported near agreement on some action against plane hijacking as airlines resumed regular schedules today following a worldwide, one-day strike by pilots that failed to shut down most major American lines.

Spurred by the walkout that halted much or all of the air travel in more than 30 countries, Security Council members met privately for three hours Monday.

Council President Lazar Mojsov of Yugoslavia said later that there were only "a few remaining points" in a proposed statement condemning hijacking. "Probably we can agree tomorrow," he said.

The strike was called by the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations—IFALPA—to dramatize demands for tougher action against airline hijackers. In addition to the U.N. discussions there was one other development during the day.

The International Civil Aviation Organization in Montreal announced it had taken steps to permit member nations to impose sanctions against countries that cooperate with hijackers and extortionists.

The nature of the sanctions was not disclosed but a spokesman said approval of the measure was nearly unanimous. The ICAO is a United Nations-related body composed of government representatives of 124 countries, dealing with problems affecting commercial aviation.

An IFALPA spokesman said in London that the group believed the pilots had made their point with the strike and that "really effective measures against hijacking" were on the way.

John J. O'Donnell, president of the Airline Pilots Association in the United States, said the attempt to shut down domestic service had accomplished a major objective despite the fact that only two lines—Northeast and Eastern—were halted for the day. Southern was shut down for a few hours.

Park Board Hires Woman Laborer
CINCINNATI (AP) — A Cincinnati woman will spend the summer lifting sacks of fertilizer and sawing dead trees for the Cincinnati Park Board's downtown crew.

Sharon Davis, 24, of suburban College Hill, is the board's first woman laborer and an official said her hiring caused "quite a stir." She began her job Monday by planting flowers on Fountain Square.

The House Speaker said late Monday, "but I'm not sure now." The Rules Committee was to meet at 9:30 a.m., followed one hour later by the first of two scheduled House floor sessions this week. The Senate is in recess until July 6.

Much of Kurfess' uncertainty stemmed from bitter debate Monday that preceded the House Environment and Natural Resources Committee vote on the EPA legislation. Democratic Reps. Patrick Sweeney, D-47, and Richard Celeste, D-49 both Clevelanders, objected in the strongest terms to the way the bill had been refined by Kurfess and others outside the committee over the weekend.

Sweeney called the finished product an "embarrassment" to the General Assembly and a "charade."

Celeste stormed out of the committee room before the vote was taken that ended 16 months of work on the measure.

Kurfess said he assumed management of the legislation after a stream of proposed amendments threatened to stall action on the measure for too long.

There are very few working days left in the 109th General Assembly.

Kurfess, an EPA backer, met

Friday with representatives of the Gilligan administration, the attorney general's office, and the Department of Natural Resources to piece together a compromise that could be moved quickly.

During Monday's committee session, those same administration figures said talks Friday hadn't been talks at all. Rather, they said, it was a take-it-or-leave-it situation.

County Board Accepts Laurelville District Transfer As Proposed

A decision was reached last night accepting all of the Laurelville Local School District, with the exception of Benton Twp., into Logan Elm School District.

The Pickaway County Board of Education and Superintendent Edward Martin retired to executive session after the special meeting Monday evening had continued nearly an hour.

Forty minutes later, and after a conference with the Logan Elm Local Board, members returned and Nelson Jones issued the proclamation of Pickaway County's action.

"I move that, due to the fact that the portion of Laurelville Local School District proposed to be transferred will, in all probability, be assigned to Pickaway County Schools by the State Department of Education even if the county board rejects the proposed resolution for such transfer, and that since a delay resultant from a negative vote would present insurmountable administrative problems in reorganizing for the school year 1972-73, therefore . . .

BE it resolved that the por-

Little State Aid Seen For LE School District

A revealing view of probable state board of education action in the future was presented to citizens attending the meeting of the Pickaway County Board on the Laurelville matter.

Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Quick was on hand to give a general view of the financial probabilities should Logan Elm absorb the Laurelville students into its district and offered an unexpected insight into what he referred to as state board thinking on a "share the wealth" program in education.

Described by a Logan Elm board member as the "Robin Hood Theory," Quick's interpretation of state thinking followed the theory that shortly the Ohio education program would have to utilize equal opportunity for all students.

"Education is a governmental responsibility. Regardless of what you believe, it is not a Logan Elm responsibility, but a duty given you by the government."

One district should not be given additional privileges over another.

Vets Hold Reunion On Old Ship

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Twenty-eight U.S. Navy veterans who served together on the U.S.S. Ancon during the Normandy Invasion in World War II are in Plymouth on a sentimental journey to see their old ship again.

Tunis North of Mansfield, Ohio, who helped organize the Coordinating Agency seeks another executive director today to replace Theodore H. Mikesell, who quit the $40,000-a-year job before he started work.

Failure of Mikesell to report for work will mean a delay in $1 million worth of urban planning projects in Cleveland, Cleveland Heights, Euclid, Akron and Elyria. NOACA is coordinator for federally funded projects in a seven-county area.

Terrence Geoghegan, representative of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in Columbus, said Monday that because of the delay in gearing NOACA up to "100 per cent capacity," the agency "won't be able to get a sufficient planning staff aboard to meet the June 30 deadline for its certification for federal planning assistance funds."

Mikesell was to have met Monday with Bob Brown, outgoing director of NOACA, but instead announced over the weekend that he has been unable to break his contract as executive director of the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission in East St. Louis, Ill.

The Ancon was a communications ship in the Normandy operation and also took part in four other invasions. She was at Tokyo Bay in 1945 when the Japanese surrender was signed.

Laird Says New Weapons Must Bolster Arms Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who has offered only conditional support of the Moscow arms accords, appears before the Senate Armed Services committee today to discuss military aspects of the agreements.

Laird has declared publicly that he could not support the U.S.-Soviet pacts limiting offensive and defensive nuclear missiles without continued U.S. development of new submarine and bomber systems.

"The success of SALT depends on sustained strength," Laird had said in remarks which differ, in emphasis at least, from the positions outlined by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger has maintained that the administration is interested equally in congressional approval of both the arms accords and funds for continued development of weapons exempt from the agreements. But he has said, "We are not making them conditional."

The new weapons programs came under fire Monday from Senate Foreign Relations Committee members who questioned Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said that shifting the arms race to exempt weapons would be "inconsistent" with the spirit of the agreements.

Rogers said the United States wants to reach additional arms agreements in continuing talks with the Soviets, but asserted that "we have to do it from a position of strength."

After all, he said, Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev has declared that Russia will move ahead on weapons improvements.

Ambassador Gerard C. Smith, director of the Arms Agency and chief U.S. negotiator of the SALT agreements, said the Russians want to improve the efficiency of their missiles, among other things converting to solid fuel.

Policemen Suspected

CHICAGO (AP) — Two Chicago newspapers reported in today's editions that four, or possibly five, city policemen have been implicated in the drug-connected slayings of at least six black men whose bodies were recovered in Chicago waterways over a period of several months.

The Sun-Times said its reporters learned Monday that local and federal authorities are seeking indictments against four, or possibly five officers. The Tribune said in a copyright story that the FBI considers five policemen prime suspects in the operation of what it termed an execution ring.

Police and FBI spokesmen declined comment. Both newspapers said the policemen, all of whom are black, were reputedly members of a police-criminal narcotics ring and served as uniformed executioners for men who balked at further payment of bribes to policemen who were protecting them in heroin peddling. The policemen allegedly feared the balking drug runners planned to turn them in, the reports said.

House Panel Holds Fate Of Environment Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The all-powerful House Rules Committee decides today whether legislation to create an Environmental Protection Agency will go to a floor vote this year.

Before that decision is made, Rules chairman Charles Kurfess, R-4 Perryburg, says he wants to test political winds.

"I had every intention to urge the Rules Committee to put it on the floor tomorrow," the House Speaker said late Monday, "but I'm not sure now."

The Rules Committee was to meet at 9:30 a.m., followed one hour later by the first of two scheduled House floor sessions this week. The Senate is in recess until July 6.

Much of Kurfess' uncertainty stemmed from bitter debate Monday that preceded the House Environment and Natural Resources Committee vote on the EPA legislation. Democratic Reps. Patrick Sweeney, D-47, and Richard Celeste, D-49 both Clevelanders, objected in the strongest terms to the way the bill had been refined by Kurfess and others outside the committee over the weekend.

Sweeney called the finished product an "embarrassment" to the General Assembly and a "charade."

Celeste stormed out of the committee room before the vote was taken that ended 16 months of work on the measure.

Kurfess said he assumed management of the legislation after a stream of proposed amendments threatened to stall action on the measure for too long.

There are very few working days left in the 109th General Assembly.

Kurfess, an EPA backer, met Friday with representatives of the Gilligan administration, the attorney general's office, and the Department of Natural Resources to piece together a compromise that could be moved quickly.

During Monday's committee session, those same administration figures said talks Friday hadn't been talks at all. Rather, they said, it was a take-it-or-leave-it situation.

Big Victory Would Push Tally To 1,300

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern hopes to win 200 more delegates over scattered opposition today in a New York primary that could give him nearly half the remaining votes he needs to capture the Democratic presidential nomination.

With 41 of his delegates unopposed and many others facing only token opposition, including some organization rivals that would back him also, McGovern appeared certain to win a substantial majority of the 248 delegates being elected in the last of 23 presidential primaries.

The South Dakota senator said it would be a setback if he won less than 200 of New York's total of 278 delegates. The last 30 will be allocated by the Democratic state committee in the same proportion as the elected delegates.

With only a handful of other delegates yet to be selected in other states, McGovern's first-ballot strength stands at 1,072.3 votes—436.7 short of the 1,509 needed to capture the nomination.

The names of presidential candidates don't appear on the ballot in New York, where voters in each of 39 congressional districts will pick delegates and alternates. They'll have to know before they go in the both which delegates favor which candidate.

Republicans are picking 78 of their 88 delegates, with supporters of President Nixon expected to win most of them.

Besides the presidential delegate races, a number of hot congressional races are being decided. In two New York City districts, liberal incumbents have been thrown together by reapportionment. Reps. William F. Ryan and Bella Abzug in a mainly Manhattan district and James J. Buckley in the Bronx.

McGovern has spent most of the past week in New York, campaigning hard to prevent any loss of momentum after his June 6 victory in California that gave him that state's 271 delegates.

His supporters are running for 237 of the 248 delegate spots in all of New York's 39 congressional districts but two, one represented by Rep. Shirley Chisholm of Brooklyn, a black who is also a presidential candidate, and the one of Rep. Herman Badillo of the Bronx, the only Puerto Rican congressman.

McGovern Aides Take Veep Poll

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aides to Sen. George McGovern are conducting nation-wide polls to test the appeal of various possible Democratic candidates for Vice President, including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The sampling is being conducted by McGovern's chief pollster, Pat Cadell, in the expectation that McGovern will win his party's presidential nomination next month. The polls match McGovern and possible choices for a running mate against Republican opposition.

Freeway Signs Tried

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Flashing, scoreboard-like signs will go into operation soon on the Santa Monica Freeway in an effort to speed traffic flow by warning motorists of tieups and other road problems ahead.

A recent demonstration of the advisory sign system showed warnings such as "right lanes blocked two miles ahead" and "congestion two miles ahead."

The signs, 8-by-30 feet with letters 18 inches high, can flash different messages.

In case of an accident which could tie up traffic, the signs might read: "Accident ahead—take next off-ramp."

Thirty-five signs are to be installed along the freeway, beginning in August. The project is scheduled for completion by early October.

James Moody Resigns From County Board

Resignation of board member Jim Moody from the Pickaway County Board of Education followed the main item on the agenda of the meeting Monday evening.

Moody announced his decision to vacate his board seat immediately, explaining that it

County . . .

A refusal on the part of Pickaway County, since Logan just recently accepted Benton Twp. residents to its city district, would most likely result in the state ordering Logan Elm to accept the remainder of the district, Quick reported.

The state department employee indicated that such a matter, while of importance to the local districts involved, would be considered a minor matter before the state board. He anticipated that should the matter go before the state, here would be little time spent debating the matter.

Little State . . .

(Continued from Page 1) had no voice in the transfer matter, Quick added that actually the state could easily override the county, just as the federal government had the right to step in and take over matters from the state.

The assistant superintendent of Ohio could offer no definite assurance of financial stability for Logan Elm, but offered the guaranteed 69 per cent additional state foundation money for the initial three years after the transfer. At the end of this period of time, the district will either grow to a point where it will remain eligible for the either state support or it will lose the additional funds, Quick said.

Mrs. Marjorie George, a resident of Laurel Twp. who last week presented a petition seeking transfer of Laurel Twp. to the Logan City district, appealed to the board last night after they announced their decision to accept the remaining area of the Laurelville School District.

The Pickaway board revealed that they could take no other action at the present time, but agreed to see what possible steps might be taken to satisfy her problem.

A school board veteran of nearly 19 years, Moody held elected seats on local boards of Madison, and was a member of the original Teays Valley board after consolidation. The past seven years, he has held his county post.

Another board member revealed that Moody's 87 years did not mean retirement was in sight.

HAROLD Lindsey was advanced to the presidency of the board but election of a new vice president was postponed until such time as a new board member is appointed by the remaining board.

Superintendent Edward Martin presented a letter he had received from the Madison Local School District in Franklin County requesting transfer of two parcels of land from the present Teays Valley District to Madison Local.

The land — 19.67 acres of the original J. W. Moody parcel and 4.52 acres of the I. W. Pack parcel — would serve to make the school district line and county boarder coincide for both school districts.

The matter was taken under advisement until the board meets again. Because they had assembled three times this month to debate the Laurelville issue, the board voted to hold their next regular meeting Aug. 3. No July meeting will be held unless something unexpected requires board action.

Meat Price Problem 'Serious'

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — The chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisors said today the rise in meat prices is "obviously a serious matter" that will require patience and understanding by producers and workers if the prices are to start going down.

Herbert Stein said that if cattlemen and farmers insist on catchup prices, if workers insist on keeping their wages ahead of meat prices, and if middlemen insist on unchanged profit margins, "then the situation will be arithmetically, economically and politically impossible."

Stein said the recent increases of meat prices at the wholesale level will soon be showing up in grocery stores.

The Price Commission will meet Wednesday to consider what to do about the sharp rise in food prices, particularly meat.

Stein indicated he does not expect any strong action on meat prices, adding that he expects the industry to take action of its own.

"I believe that there is enough good will, good sense and good leadership around to prevent" further acceleration of meat prices, he said.

Ask Track Abandonment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio would lose 615 miles of freight railroad track if U.S. District Court in Philadelphia agrees to a proposal by the Penn Central Transportation Co.

The company, in deep financial trouble, requested the court to allow 1,933 miles of track in 11 states and Canada to be abandoned. Ohio has 31 per cent of that mileage.

Operations along the track, said Penn Central, "cannot be justified by sound business practices or by public necessity."

The Ohio track that would be abandoned includes:

Thirteen miles Magnolia to Dover; 3.4 miles Dover to Parlat; 27 miles Dexter to Marietta; 44 miles Mount Gilead to Heath; 9 miles Hebron to Thurston; 41 miles Washington Court House to Morrow; 4.3 miles Scioto to Ostrander; 12.4 miles Bellefontaine to Belle Center; 10 miles Springfield to Yellow Springs, and 70.5 miles Jackson, Mich., to North Paulding.

Sheriff's Deputies Investigate Separate Hit-Skip Accidents

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies are looking for drivers of two cars involved in separate hit-and-run accidents Monday. Witnesses have supplied them with the license numbers of both vehicles.

The first accident occurred 2:45 p.m. Monday when a southbound car on State Route 104 attempted a turn onto Walker Road and crashed into a fence on the left side of the roadway.

The fence is owned by John W. Beavers, Route 2, Circleville. Four rods of the wire fencing and two steel posts were destroyed.

The second hit-skip accident occurred 9:30 p.m. Monday as a southbound car on Route 23, just south of the Circleville-Tarleton Road, destroyed three traffic barricades and a flashing light at a construction site. They were owned by the Van Camp Construction Co.

Deputy Don Thompson charged Gary L. Wertman, 18, Route 1, Stoutsville, with reckless operation following his investigation of Wertman's one car accident 11 p.m. Monday.

According to Thompson's report, Wertman was southbound on the Hayesville-Adelphi Road when he drove off the right side of the roadway, attempted to turn around and drove off the left side into a ditch.

Neither Wertman nor two passengers in his car, Martin Eveland, 17, Laurelville, and Charles Ebert, 16, Laurelville, were hurt in the accident.

Treasury Ponders Method Of Cutting Big Tax Refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under congressional prodding, the Treasury is studying a plan to reward taxpayers who agree to lend the government the extra-large refunds they expect to get next year from income-tax withholding.

The idea is not so much to ease the government's borrowing problems as to head off a surge of inflation when taxpayers suddenly collect an estimated $8 billion in spendable funds.

The proposal is to offer a choice to taxpayers whose 1972 returns show a refund coming: either take the cash, or accept a bond that pays better interest than the 5.5-per-cent yield the ordinary seven-year government Series E. Bond provides.

Withholding has been a headache for two years for wage-earners and the Treasury alike. In 1969, the rate was set too low, and many taxpayers found that, when they filed their returns this year, they owed substantial amounts.

In an effort to correct this, Congress revised the withholding rate late last year, on Treasury recommendations, but overcompensated.

So, there is the prospect that taxpayers, with money taken out of their paychecks that the government would prefer to leave in the spending stream, will have big refunds coming in early 1973. That is when administration economists expect the economy to be more robust—and more inflation-prone.

In its report on the pending bill to extend the national-debt ceiling, the House Ways and Means Committee disclosed that the prospect of a special-incentive savings bond has been discussed with the Treasury.

The committee said the Treasury "has agreed to look into both the desirability and practicality of the matter."

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, who brought the matter up in closed committee sessions with Treasury officials, said, "They had better do something—if this $8 billion spins out all of a sudden it could send inflation up four or five points."

One way to increase the yield on the securities, Vanik suggested, would be to issue predated E. Bonds, so that a holder would not have to wait a full seven years before collecting the entire face value of the bond, which is sold at a discount.

But the county commissioners ruled that all scavengers are banned from the dump and that Sewell would have to do his trashhunting elsewhere.

Government Ends Wiretaps Following Court Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bowing to a Supreme Court mandate, the Justice Department has ordered a halt to wiretapping in domestic-security cases where no surveillance warrant was obtained beforehand.

Striking down a key part of the Nixon administration's law-enforcement program, the court ruled 8 to 0 Monday that a judge's consent is necessary before the government may eavesdrop on suspected domestic radicals.

"The price of lawful public dissent must not be a dread of submission to an unchecked surveillance power," wrote Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., a Nixon administration appointee.

Within hours, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst "directed the termination of all electronic surveillance in cases involving domestic security that conflict with the court's opinion."

One plank in the MFD platform includes moving the union headquarters back to the coal fields.

Meat Price Problem 'Serious'

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — The chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said today the rise in meat prices is "obviously a serious matter" that will require patience and understanding by producers and workers if the prices are to start going down.

Herbert Stein said that if cattlemen and farmers insist on catchup prices, if workers insist on keeping their wages ahead of meat prices, and if middlemen insist on unchanged profit margins, "then the situation will be arithmetically, economically and politically impossible."

Stein said the recent increases of meat prices at the wholesale level will soon be showing up in grocery stores.

The Price Commission will meet Wednesday to consider what to do about the sharp rise in food prices, particularly meat.

Stein indicated he does not expect any strong action on meat prices, adding that he expects the industry to take action of its own.

"I believe that there is enough good will, good sense and good leadership around to prevent" further acceleration of meat prices, he said.

Ask Track Abandonment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio would lose 615 miles of freight railroad track if U.S. District Court in Philadelphia agrees to a proposal by the Penn Central Transportation Co.

The company, in deep financial trouble, requested the court to allow 1,933 miles of track in 11 states and Canada to be abandoned. Ohio has 31 per cent of that mileage.

Operations along the track, said Penn Central, "cannot be justified by sound business practices or by public necessity."

The Ohio track that would be abandoned includes: Thirteen miles Magnolia to Dover; 3.4 miles Dover to Parra; 27 miles Dexter to Marietta; 44 miles Mount Gilead to Heath; 9 miles Hebron to Thurston; 41 miles Washington Court House to Morrow; 4.3 miles Scioto to Ostrander; 12.4 miles Bellefontaine to Belle Center; 10 miles Springfield to Yellow Springs, and 70.5 miles Jackson, Mich., to North Paulding.

Sheriff's Deputies Investigate Separate Hit-Skip Accidents

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies are looking for drivers of two cars involved in separate hit-and-run accidents Monday. Witnesses have supplied them with the license numbers of both vehicles.

The first accident occurred 2:45 p.m. Monday when a southbound car on State Route 104 attempted a turn onto Walker Road and crashed into a fence on the left side of the roadway.

The fence is owned by John W. Beavers, Route 2, Circleville. Four rods of the wire fencing and two steel posts were destroyed.

The second hit-skip accident occurred 9:30 p.m. Monday as a southbound car on Route 23, just south of the Circleville-Tarleton Road, destroyed three traffic barricades and a flashing light at a construction site. They were owned by the Van Camp Construction Co.

Deputy Don Thompson charged Gary L. Wertman, 18, Route 1, Stoutsville, with reckless operation following his investigation of Wertman's one car accident 11 p.m. Monday.

According to Thompson's report, Wertman was southbound on the Hayesville-Adelphi Road when he drove off the right side of the roadway, attempted to turn around and drove off the left side into a ditch.

Neither Wertman nor two passengers in his car, Martin Eveland, 17, Laurelville, and Charles Ebert, 16, Laurelville, were hurt in the accident.

Treasury Ponders Method Of Cutting Big Tax Refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under congressional prodding, the Treasury is studying a plan to reward taxpayers who agree to lend the government the extra-large refunds they expect to get next year from income-tax withholding.

The idea is not so much to ease the government's borrowing problems as to head off a surge of inflation when taxpayers suddenly collect an estimated $8 billion in spendable funds.

The proposal is to offer a choice to taxpayers whose 1972 returns show a refund coming: either take the cash, or accept a bond that pays better interest than the 5.5-per-cent yield the ordinary seven-year government Series E Bond provides.

Withholding has been a headache for two years for wage-earners and the Treasury alike. In 1969, the rate was set too low, and many taxpayers found that, when they filed their returns this year, they owed substantial amounts.

In an effort to correct this, Congress revised the withholding rate late last year, but Treasury recommendations, but overcompensated.

So, there is the prospect that taxpayers, with money taken out of their paychecks that the government would prefer to leave in the spending stream, will have big refunds coming in early 1973. That is when administration economists expect the economy to be more robust — and more inflation-prone.

In its report on the pending bill to extend the national-debt ceiling, the House Ways and Means Committee disclosed that the prospect of a special-incentive savings bond has been discussed with the Treasury.

The committee said the Treasury "has agreed to look into both the desirability and practicality of the matter."

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, who brought the matter up in closed committee sessions with Treasury officials, said, "They had better do something—if this $8 billion spins out all of a sudden it could send inflation up four or five points."

One way to increase the yield on the securities, Vanik suggested, would be to issue predated E Bonds, so that a holder would not have to wait a full seven years before collecting the entire face value of the bond, which is sold at a discount.

Arrests

Gary L. Wertman, 18, Stoutsville, reckless operation. Juanita Teels, 34, 153 E. Water St. intoxication. Ivan K. Crane, 44, 435 S. Scioto St. intoxication.

Martin Guilty Of Weapon Citation

Ronald Martin, 31, 430 S. Pickaway St., pleaded guilty to carrying a concealed weapon and not guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon in Municipal Court Monday morning.

Martin was arrested Saturday by Sheriff's Deputy Bill Dountz following a brief scuffle in which Martin is alleged to have brandished a hunting knife.

Acting Court Judge Allan Berger fined him $100 and costs and sentenced him to 30 days in the Pickaway County Jail after he pleaded guilty to carrying the concealed weapon.

Berger noted that 15 days of the sentence will be suspended for prompt payment of the fine.

Martin pleaded not guilty to the assault charge and will appear 10:30 a.m. July 6 for a preliminary hearing. He is under $3000 bond.

In other court cases Terry L. Moss, 24, Route 1, forfeited $19 bond for driving with a defective exhaust system.

David M. Waters, 18, Route 3, forfeited $19 bond for making unnecessary noise.

Dianna Bowman, 22, Route 1, Mt. Sterling, forfeited $29 bond for speeding 70 miles per hour in 50 zone.

Larry A. Cooper, 22, 1227 S. Pickaway St., forfeited $24 bond for speeding 75 miles per hour in 60 zone.

James F. Hinton, 29, 214 Brink Drive, forfeited $24 bond for speeding 75 miles per hour in a 60 zone.

Government Ends Wiretaps Following Court Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bowing to a Supreme Court mandate, the Justice Department has ordered a halt to wiretapping in domestic security cases where no surveillance warrant was obtained beforehand.

Striking down a key part of the Nixon administration's law-enforcement program, the court ruled 8 to 0 Monday that a judge's consent is necessary before the government may eavesdrop on suspected domestic radicals.

"The price of lawful public dissent must not be a dread of subjection to an unchecked surveillance power," wrote Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., a Nixon administration appointee.

Within hours, Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst "directed the termination of all electronic surveillance in cases involving domestic security that conflict with the court's opinion."

The administration argued that tapping and bugging of suspected domestic subversives is permissible under both the 4th Amendment and the 1968 law.

Kleindienst said the Internal Security Division of Justice is reviewing pending cases and will recommend whether information obtained by wiretapping should be disclosed to defendants or whether charges against the suspects should be dismissed.

The attorney general said the department will work closely with Congress in drawing new guidelines and procedures for court-approved electronic surveillance in domestic cases.

Justice Powell delivered the wiretap opinion in a case involving a White Panther accused of dynamiting a Central Intelligence Agency branch office.

Powell wrote that the Constitution requires prior judicial approval for wiretaps and that the 1968 federal Safe Streets Act did not authorize eavesdropping without such consent beforehand.

The administration argued that tapping and bugging of suspected domestic subversives is permissible under both the 4th Amendment and the 1968 law.

UMW Office Move Opposed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — United Mine Workers Vice President George Titler says any move of the union headquarters from Washington back to the coal fields will just cause problems.

One plank in the MFD platform includes moving the union headquarters back to the coal fields.

Increase In Family Doctor Ranks Expected To Continue

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The family doctor is coming back strong among the nation's new generation of medical school graduates.

"The reversal trend from specialized practice is clear," Dr. Carroll L. Witten of Louisville told an American Medical Association family practice session today.

Ninety per cent of the University of Washington's last three medical school classes are entering family practice, said Dr. Edward J. Kowalewski of Baltimore.

Witten reported the number of family practitioners in the nation dropped from 80,000 in 1947 to 59,000 in 1967 and has returned to 64,000. He said the recovery rate will speed up in future years.

The decline in family practitioners developed with a surge to specialized practice after World War II.

The sharp increase in medical graduates choosing family instead of specialized practice reflects both a public need and demand and a commitment in the young medical generation, said Kowalewski, head of the division of family practice at the University of Maryland.

He said 126 of the 240 students in Maryland's last two classes are choosing to be family physicians.

Kowalewski said today's students demand course in counseling, a craft the present mature family physician learned by experience.

Police Chief Opposes City Handgun Law

CINCINNATI (AP) — A proposed ordinance to register all handguns should not be passed, Police Chief Carl V. Goodin said Monday before City Council's Law and Public Safety Committee.

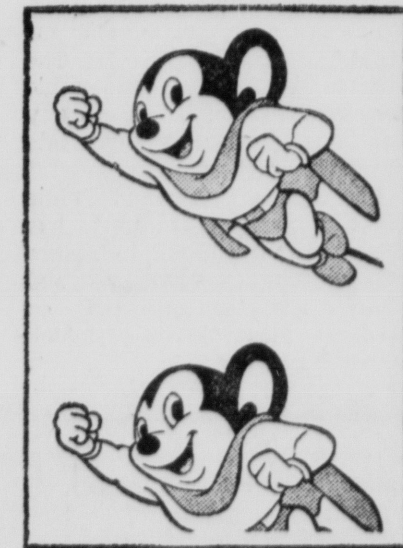

He said the measure would be too localized and that "those people most likely to comply" would be the ones least necessary to monitor—law-abiding citizens.

The ordinance was first proposed by councilman Theodore M. Berry, Law Committee chairman, and would require most persons in Cincinnati to carry an identification card before they could obtain handguns.

Goodin said he does favor some type of gun control legislation, saying that 35 per cent of all policemen killed in the United States die from gunshot wounds, 75 per cent of those from handguns.

Rather than a city ordinance, Goodin called for a "three-tiered law"—federal, state and local—that "would be enforceable," which he said the proposed legislation was not. He asked city council to study the gun control problem more closely.

Safety Director Henry J. Sandman proposed an ordinance that would exclude the possession of handguns in Cincinnati to everyone except government employees, private or special policemen, security guards or police officers.

Sen. Smith Easy Victor In Maine

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The nation's only woman senator, 74-year-old Margaret Chase Smith, defeated a combination of youth and money to win Republican nomination for a fifth term.

Mrs. Smith will face Democrat William D. Hathaway, a popular four-term congressman who romped to a 10-1 victory over perennial candidate Jack L. Smith of Portland in the state primary election Monday.

With 602 of Maine's 629 precincts reported, Mrs. Smith had 71,107 votes to 34,527 for Robert A.G. Monks, 38, a millionaire businessman. Hathaway received 54,601 votes to Jack Smith's 5,653.

Mrs. Smith, Maine's top vote-getter, maintained her usual low-key weekends-only campaign. She stressed her Senate seniority and its importance to the state, using the theme: "Don't swap a record for a promise."

Monks campaigned strenuously, picturing himself as a modern, dynamic leader who could inject new life into a sagging Maine Republican party. He conducted a computerized grass roots campaign, spending upwards of $147,000 according to a report filed just before the primary. Mrs. Smith spent about $7,000 in the campaign, relying heavily on volunteers.

Age and money were the two biggest factors in the primary battle, which was Mrs. Smith's first intraparty challenge in 18 years.

Menchhofer, 29, has been director of the City Beautiful Council in Dayton since May, 1969.

Woman Wins $900,000 Crash Suit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A 23-year-old Cuyahoga Heights woman was awarded $900,000 Monday from the City of Cleveland and the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio) for injuries suffered in a 1967 traffic accident.

The settlement, one of the largest ever in Ohio, calls for the city to pay $625,000 to Beverly Bemis and Sohio to pay $275,000.

Miss Bemis suffered permanent injuries and is paralyzed from the neck down because of the accident on Interstate 77 which claimed the life of her fiancé, David Pietrzak.

Sohio agreed to pay the $275,000 shortly after trial on a $6 million damage suit began in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court. The offer was accepted with the agreement the city would pay the difference between $275,000 and the jury's verdict.

Judge John Angelotta informed the jury of the settlement during the ninth day of trial Monday and instructed the jury to sign a verdict form for the $900,000.

Miss Bemis and Pietrzak were driving to downtown Cleveland to buy wedding rings when their car collided with a Sohio flatbed truck after Pietrzak swerved to miss a city street sweeper, partially blocking both northbound lanes. The couple was to marry in two weeks.

Bombs Rip Irish Pubs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Powerful bomb blasts damaged pubs in two country towns in Northern Ireland during the night after one British soldier was killed and four were wounded in an ambush by guerrillas in Belfast.

Fourteen persons were injured—none of them seriously—in the explosion at Ballymena, northwest of Belfast. Nobody was hurt at Dunamanagh, County Tyrone.

The bomb at Ballymena, more than 100 pounds of gelignite planted in a stolen car, also wrecked an employment bureau and damaged 16 nearby homes.

The British soldier died when a volley of bullets hit troops patrolling Belfast's Brompton Park area. A military spokesman said the four wounded men were not hurt seriously. At least 374 persons, including 96 soldiers, have died in the past three years of strife in Northern Ireland.

Red Rocket Kills Beloved American Adviser

By PETER ARNETT
and
HORST FAAS
Associated Press Writers

ON ROUTE 13, Vietnam (AP) — He ran straight into an exploding rocket. At his heels was a gray mongrel dog, his constant companion in many battles. It died with him.

"He was right up front to get the attack going," said the officer who replaced him on the spot. "He didn't have to be right up here, but that's the kind of man Col. Willey was. His courage and sheer presence made all the difference."

Lt. Col. Burr M. Willey, 44, from Ayer, Mass., was one of a handful of Americans still seeing front-line action in Vietnam. He was part of the small team of advisers to the South Vietnamese 21st Infantry Division which has been fighting for two months to raise the siege of An Loc.

About noon Monday it seemed that the final push was near. Willey and other advisers persuaded the Vietnamese to use their tanks and rangers in an attempt to end the month-long deadlock.

As the heavy vehicles lumbered northwards past his command bunker at Chon Thanh, Willey shouted gleefully, "At last they're moving."

He jammed on his steel helmet, tugged on his flak vest, climbed into his jeep and said, "I'll be back in half an hour." Two hours later a helicopter was to fly him to Saigon for a week's respite from the battlefront.

As his jeep began to move off, he called out, "Come on, Moose." Out of the bunker dashed a streak of dirty gray fur. It jumped between the radios in the back seat, and the jeep raced off.

"I inherited Moose in the Delta," Willey had said half an hour earlier. "And he has never gone from my side. He insists on riding the helicopters with me. We even made the newspaper's together," he laughed, showing a clipping.

It was an Associated Press Wirephoto showing Willey shooting his rifle, his barking dog behind him. The picture was taken on May 13, a few yards from where they were to die together.

Willey bypassed the tanks strung along Route 13 and swung off the road near a forward position called the Anthill. Bending low to avoid snipers, he ran forward to join a battalion adviser, Maj. Thyrone Henderson of Lexington, Ky., in his foxhole.

"We heard the first rocket round come in behind us and looked back," Henderson recalled. "It hit near the Vietnamese command group. Willey started back to see if anyone had been hurt and to take over if needed."

"I was five or ten yards behind. There was a terrific explosion just in front of him. I heard the dog yelp in pain. When the dust settled, Col. Willey was lying on the ground and I knew it was instant death. The dog tumbled into a bomb crater."

While Henderson wrapped the dead colonel in a poncho, the rockets continued to fall. Within minutes, nine Vietnamese were dead and two were wounded. The drive collapsed, and the

ACLU Asks Parochial Aid Court Ruling

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has asked U.S. District Court here to convene a three-judge panel to consider the constitutionality of Ohio's latest plan for channeling state aid to non-public schools.

The plan calls for tax credits or refunds up to $90 per student each year for parents of non-public school students.

Atty. Gen. William Brown filed suit in Franklin County Common Pleas Court last week asking a declaratory judgment on the new plan, passed by both houses of the legislature, but not yet signed by Gov. John Gilligan.

But the ACLU countered almost immediately with a petition for removal which automatically removed the case from state jurisdiction and put it in the same federal court which earlier this year ruled Ohio's previous non-public school aid plan unconstitutional.

That plan had called for $90 annual subsidies to non-public school parents.

There is still no ruling on another action involving the so-called "parochial" bill, a suit filed in Cleveland U.S. District Court asking that the court order the bill implemented without interference.

tanks and rangers pulled back.

Willey's friend and superior officer, Col. J. Ross Franklin, who had been at the side of the road, loaded the body on the hood of his jeep. Grim-faced, he raced southward, headlights flashing.

An American medical evacuation helicopter met them two miles down the road. Franklin grabbed one side of a shrapnel-shredded stretcher and loaded his dead officer aboard.

Eight wounded Vietnamese crawled aboard, and some sprawled across the colonel's litter.

"This was his third Vietnam tour," Franklin said as the helicopter lifted off. "He was an old soldier just doing his job."

Willey was a hard-driving man who had no illusions about the risks of his job or about the Vietnamese. In the past two months he had seen Americans who had worked with him killed or shipped home wounded.

He was full of sympathy for the Vietnamese soldiers fighting an endless war. But he did not hide his resentment of some of the Vietnamese officers who were reluctant to head the fight.

At the moment of his death, Willey's Vietnamese counterpart was following the operation from a hammock strung between the sandbagged walls of his command bunker three miles to the rear.

Sgt. Maj. Jim L. Ellis, from Crosswell, Mich., fought back

the tears as he packed Willey's few personal things. He had shared a forward bunker with the colonel since April 25 and had himself survived some close ones, including a direct hit on the bunker.

He pulled out a ledger from underneath a cot and ran his finger down the list of 15 advisers who had been on the regimental team. Some had died, some had been wounded as many as four times.

Ellis took a pen and crossed out one of the entries: "Burr M. Willey, Lt. Col., U.S. Army, branch infantry, arrived April 25." He wrote in the last column, "K.I.A. June 19, 1972."

Witten reported the number of family practitioners in the nation dropped from 80,000 in 1947 to 59,000 in 1967 and has returned to 64,000. He said the recovery rate will speed up in future years.

The decline in family practitioners developed with a surge to specialized practice after World War II.

The sharp increase in medical graduates choosing family instead of specialized practice reflects both a public need and demand and a commitment in the young medical generation, said Kowalewski, head of the division of family practice at the University of Maryland.

He said 126 of the 240 students in Maryland's last two classes are choosing to be family physicians.

Kowalewski said today's students demand course in counseling, a craft the present mature family physician learned by experience.

Police Chief Opposes City Handgun Law

CINCINNATI (AP) — A proposed ordinance to register all handguns should not be passed, Police Chief Carl V. Goodin said Monday before City Council's Law and Public Safety Committee.

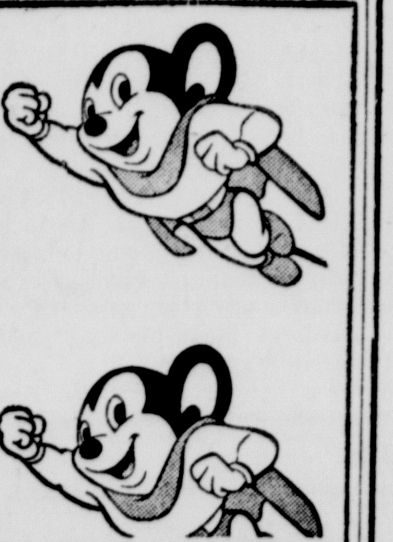

He said the measure would be too localized and that "those people most likely to comply" would be the ones least necessary to monitor—law-abiding citizens.

The ordinance was first proposed by councilman Theodore M. Berry, Law Committee chairman, and would require most persons in Cincinnati to carry an identification card before they could obtain handguns.

Goodin said he does favor some type of gun control legislation, saying that 35 per cent of all policemen killed in the United States die from gunshot wounds, 75 per cent of those from handguns.

Rather than a city ordinance, Goodin called for a "three-tiered law"—federal, state and local—that "would be enforceable," which he said the proposed legislation was not. He asked city council to study the gun control problem more closely.

Safety Director Henry J. Sandman proposed an ordinance that would exclude the possession of handguns in Cincinnati to everyone except government employees, private or special policemen, security guards or police officers.

Sen. Smith Easy Victor In Maine

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The nation's only woman senator, 74-year-old Margaret Chase Smith, defeated a combination of youth and money to win Republican nomination for a fifth term.

Mrs. Smith will face Democrat William D. Hathaway, a popular four-term congressman who romped to a 10-1 victory over perennial candidate Jack L. Smith of Portland in the state primary election Monday.

With 602 of Maine's 629 precincts reported, Mrs. Smith had 71,107 votes to 34,527 for Robert A.G. Monks, 38, a millionaire businessman. Hathaway received 54,601 votes to Jack Smith's 5,653.

Mrs. Smith, Maine's top vote-getter, maintained her usual low-key weekends-only campaign. She stressed her Senate seniority and its importance to the state, using the theme: "Don't swap a record for a promise."

Monks campaigned strenuously, picturing himself as a modern, dynamic leader who could inject new life into a sagging Maine Republican party. He conducted a computerized grass roots campaign, spending upwards of $147,000 according to a report filed just before the primary. Mrs. Smith spent about $7,000 in the campaign, relying heavily on volunteers.

Age and money were the two biggest factors in the primary battle, which was Mrs. Smith's first intraparty challenge in 18 years.

Woman Wins $900,000 Crash Suit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A 23-year-old Cuyahoga Heights woman was awarded $900,000 Monday from the City of Cleveland and the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio (Sohio) for injuries suffered in a 1967 traffic accident.

The settlement, one of the largest ever in Ohio, calls for the city to pay $625,000 to Beverly Bemis and Sohio to pay $275,000.

Miss Bemis suffered permanent injuries and is paralyzed from the neck down because of the accident on Interstate 77 which claimed the life of her fiancé, David Pietrzak.

Sohio agreed to pay the $275,000 shortly after trial on a $6 million damage suit began in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court. The offer was accepted with the agreement the city would pay the difference between $275,000 and the jury's verdict.

Judge John Angelotta informed the jury of the settlement during the ninth day of trial Monday and instructed the jury to sign a verdict form for the $900,000.

Miss Bemis and Pietrzak were driving to downtown Cleveland to buy wedding rings when their car collided with a Sohio flatbed truck after Pietrzak swerved to miss a city street sweeper, partially blocking both northbound lanes. The couple was to marry in two weeks.

Bombs Rip Irish Pubs

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Powerful bomb blasts damaged pubs in two country towns in Northern Ireland during the night after one British soldier was killed and four were wounded in an ambush by guerrillas in Belfast.

Fourteen persons were injured—none of them seriously—in the explosion at Ballymena, northwest of Belfast. Nobody was hurt at Dunamag, County Tyrone.

The bomb at Ballymena, more than 100 pounds of gelignite planted in a stolen car, also wrecked an employment bureau and damaged 16 nearby homes.

The British soldier died when a volley of bullets hit troops patrolling Belfast's Brompton Park area. A military spokesman said the four wounded men were not hurt seriously.

At least 374 persons, including 96 soldiers, have died in the past three years of strife in Northern Ireland.

Red Rocket Kills Beloved American Adviser

By PETER ARNETT and HORST FAAS
Associated Press Writers

ON ROUTE 13, Vietnam (AP) — He ran straight into an exploding rocket. At his heels was a gray mongrel dog, his constant companion in many battles. It died with him.

"He was right up front to get the attack going," said the officer who replaced him on the spot. "He didn't have to be right up here, but that's the kind of man Col. Willey was. His courage and sheer presence made all the difference."

Lt. Col. Burr M. Willey, 44, from Ayer, Mass., was one of a handful of Americans still seeing front-line action in Vietnam. He was part of the small team of advisers to the South Vietnamese 21st Infantry Division which has been fighting for two months to raise the siege of An Loc.

About noon Monday it seemed that the final push was near. Willey and other advisers persuaded the Vietnamese to use their tanks and rangers in an attempt to end the month-long deadlock.

As the heavy vehicles lumbered northwards past his command bunker at Chon Thanh, Willey shouted gleefully, "At last they're moving."

He jammed on his steel helmet, tugged on his flak vest, climbed into his jeep and said, "I'll be back in half an hour." Two hours later a helicopter was to fly him to Saigon for a week's respite from the battlefront.

As his jeep began to move off, he called out, "Come on, Moose." Out of the bunker dashed a streak of dirty gray fur. It jumped between the radios in the back seat, and the jeep raced off.

"I inherited Moose in the Delta," Willey had said half an hour earlier. "And he has never gone from my side. He insists on riding the helicopters with me. We even made the newspaper together," he laughed, showing a clipping.

It was an Associated Press Wirephoto showing Willey shooting his rifle, his barking dog behind him. The picture was taken on May 13, a few yards from where they were to die together.

Willey bypassed the tanks strung along Route 13 and swung off the road near a forward position called the Anthill. Bending low to avoid snipers, he ran forward to join a battalion adviser, Maj. Thyronne Henderson of Lexington, Ky., in his foxhole.

"We heard the first rocket round come in behind us and looked back," Henderson recalled. "It hit near the Vietnamese command group. Willey started back to see if anyone had been hurt and to take over if needed."

"I was five or ten yards behind. There was a terrific explosion just in front of him. I heard the dog yelp in pain. When the dust settled, Col. Willey was lying on the ground and I knew it was instant death. The dog tumbled into a bomb crater."

While Henderson wrapped the dead colonel in a poncho, the rockets continued to fall. Within minutes, nine Vietnamese were dead and two were wounded. The drive collapsed, and the tanks and rangers pulled back.

Willey's friend and superior officer, Col. J. Ross Franklin, who had been at the side of the road, loaded the body on the hood of his jeep. Grim-faced, he raced southward, headlights flashing.

An American medical evacuation helicopter met them two miles down the road. Franklin grabbed one side of a shrapnel-shredded stretcher and loaded his dead officer aboard.

Eight wounded Vietnamese crawled aboard, and some sprawled across the colonel's litter.

"This was his third Vietnam tour," Franklin said as the helicopter lifted off. "He was an old soldier just doing his job."

Willey was a hard-driving man who had no illusions about the risks of his job or about the Vietnamese. In the past two months he had seen Americans who had worked with him killed or shipped home wounded.

He was full of sympathy for the Vietnamese soldiers fighting an endless war. But he did not hide his resentment of some of the Vietnamese officers who were reluctant to head the fight. At the moment of his death, Willey's Vietnamese counterpart was following the operation from a hammock strung between the sandbagged walls of his command bunker three miles to the rear.

Sgt. Maj. Jim L. Ellis, from Crosswell, Mich., fought back

the tears as he packed Willey's few personal things. He had shared a forward bunker with the colonel since April 25 and had himself survived some close ones, including a direct hit on the bunker.

He pulled out a ledger from underneath a cot and ran his finger down the list of 15 advisers who had been on the regimental team. Some had died, some had been wounded as many as four times.

Ellis took a pen and crossed out one of the entries: "Burr M. Willey, Lt. Col., U.S. Army, branch infantry, arrived April . . ." He wrote in the last column, "K.I.A. June 19, 1972."

War Cost Escalates

Whatever members of the House and Senate appropriations committees had been expecting to hear concerning future costs of the Vietnam war, it was not what Sec. of Defense Laird provided in the way of estimates.

During his all-day testimony before the two panels, Laird said the expanded United States response to the invasion from the North at the minimum would add several billions of dollars in new costs by the end of the year.

It could reach as much as $5 billion in additional spending, Laird testified, if the heavy bombardment of the North and related activities continue through December. Figures on the cost of the war prior to the enemy's offensive have not been released, but the Defense department's estimate for the fiscal year ending June 30 was $7 billion. Adding $5 billion to that would indicate an increase of about 70 percent in U.S. war spending.

Laird gave two reasons for the heavy added cost: the munitions being rained on North Vietnam and replacement of equipment destroyed by the enemy in ground fighting. The increased spending will be considerably below the top annual outlay of $22 billion during the Johnson years, even if it reaches the maximum limit of $12 billion forecast by Laird.

This time, however, the escalating costs are occurring at a time when American ground pressure is greatly curtailed and scheduled to decline further over the remainder of the year.

Sanctuary Boycott

Organized boycotts frequently injure innocent parties. But the order of the Air Line Pilots Association to its members on 36 U.S. airlines to refuse to fly to countries which provide a haven for airline hijackers cannot be faulted on any ground.

It would have been preferable for diplomacy to take care of pirate sanctuaries. But this is impossible. Only the airlines and their employees can take effective action against such sanctuaries as Cuba and Algeria.

Airline crew members have risked their lives too many times to be expected to continue to offer themselves as pawns in mushrooming hijacking incidents without taking some form of retaliation. The number of flights from the U.S. to pirate havens may be small, but the publicity effect of the boycott the pilots association has ordered could help isolate the sanctuaries from other points of origin as well.

Lincoln Theory

A heart specialist who has spent the last 10 years researching the health of Abraham Lincoln has an interesting theory about the nation's 16th president. Lincoln, says Dr. Harold Schwartz of Lynwood, Calif., probably would have lived no more than six months past his assassination had he died naturally.

The reason, Schwartz claims, is that Lincoln probably suffered from a heart condition in its advanced stages.

"Lincoln had a very advanced form of a physical problem called aortic insufficiency," Schwartz believes. "It was undoubtedly so advanced that Lincoln was going downhill at the time of his fatal visit to the theater."

An interesting theory which, if true, adds another quirk of fate to history's pages. At this point in time that is what it must remain — a theory.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Is the individual investor a dying breed, about to be buried in the avalanche of trading emanating from the big institutional traders who now account for most of the volume on the New York Stock Exchange?

That notion is broadcast from time to time, and not without some justification. Many individual investors of long standing have canceled out their accounts in recent years. Many others are steady sellers.

Meanwhile, the growth of institutions such as mutual and pension funds has been phenomenal. And their aggressiveness as traders has grown too.

During the 1965-1971 period, institutional volume grew by what Dr. William Freund, NYSE chief economist, calls an "astounding 25 per cent a year" and now accounts for 68 per cent of all trading, in dollar terms.

But, he points out, all that growth isn't at the expense of the individual investor. The latter's transactions grew 8 per cent a year in the same period, and new accounts for 32 per cent of trading.

In other words, it is true that the institutions are more dominant in the market than they were, and it is true that the individual investor carries less trading weight than before.

But it isn't true that there are fewer individual investors now than at any earlier period. The number of such investors is now estimated at 32.5 million, up from 31.9 million last year.

One misimpression about the market is that mutual funds are the most powerful institutional traders. Not so at all. They are the most obvious, because they sell shares to the public, but they are from the biggest.

That distinction belongs to the private noninsured pension funds, which now have more than $125 billion in assets, $85 billion of which is in common stocks.

By comparison, the mutual funds have total assets of about $55 billion, with all but $3 billion of it in common stocks.

Nevertheless, it is these two institutional trading categories that have caused the individual investor to become less and less powerful in the market. Each year these two fund categories are more influential in setting prices.

Not only are private pension funds growing in size, but the tendency now is to seek maximum returns in the stock market rather than from more conservative investments in bonds.

And not only are mutual funds growing in size and number, but they are markedly more active traders than they were 10 years ago. Some funds now turn over their portfolios 100 per cent within one year.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Some very practical pointers have come to my attention and I would like to pass them on to you.

Dr. Samuel W. Gollub, of St. Louis, says, "The quickest way to stop a simple nosebleed is this: Have the person sit or lie down. If he has a loose clot of blood or mucus in his nose have him gently blow this out, even if it temporarily increases bleeding.

"Now, he presses his finger over the nostril that is not bleeding, and inhales slowly and deeply through the bleeding nostril, exhaling through his mouth.

"The air, passing over the bleeding point, quickly stops the bleeding.

"If both nostrils are bleeding, try to inhale and exhale through both nostrils."

It's worth a try. If it is not effective, then packing the nose with absorbent cotton, the older approach, should be resorted to.

Dr. Ben Kritchman, of Jamaica, N.Y., points out: "When you need a urine specimen from a young child, you can get it quickly by running your hand lightly over his lower back area (over the spine) for a few seconds. This induces a reflex action to urinate, and in no time you have the specimen."

Dr. Jeffrey Balfus, of Palo Alto, Calif., makes this interesting observation:

"Every youngster with diabetes must be taught to administer his own insulin injections. I ask the patient to hold an ice cube on his thigh for two or three minutes until slight redness (erythema) develops. I then tell him to touch the needle to his skin with gradually increasing pressure. "He soon realizes he is experiencing no real pain. The next step is a quick push and the job is done."

The ingenuity of doctors all over the world is great. Many of their personal techniques are based on consideration and caring for the special needs of their patients.

They unselfishly then pass on their ingenious ideas and devices so that other doctors can offer their patients the benefits of such creativity.

Every single person in America can become a monitor to report and control gross evidence of air pollution. Only with public pressure by those who care and want to continue to breathe can our air be once again purified . . . free of smoke, filth, exhausts, and noxious, polluted gases.

Commencement

By JEFFERY HART

HANOVER, N. Y. (KFS) — A really bad idea, like a really good one, deserves a certain celebrity, and one has just turned up that is so sick — yet also in its way so revealing — that I ought to pass it along and also look it over a bit.

College commencements this year, to the chagrin of some, have returned to their customary pattern. Under the trees, amid balmy spring weather, students are receiving their degrees. Parents are proud. The familiar ceremony is reassuring. No one is turning up in the nude. No one is presenting a live pig to the college president.

At Dartmouth, however, paid radio advertisements have been emanating from the chaplain's office urging that graduating seniors take the $6 they would normally spend on renting a cap and gown and, instead, give the money to Bangladesh.

When I first tuned in on one of these ads I could scarcely believe it, but sure enough, there was the student voice, full of idealistic excitement, floating this very suggestion, and not only floating it but putting it forward as an example of the sort of thing Dartmouth really stands for, a gesture that would sum up the meaning of a four-year liberal arts education.

Now there's nothing wrong with giving $6, or $600, to Bangladesh if you feel like it. After all, it's your dough. But why, I wondered, was the chaplain's office urging students to give that particular six bucks to Bangladesh? Why pick on the cap and gown?

For one thing, because it makes the gesture so conspicuous. Walking gownless in the procession, the donor of the six clams will call everyone's attention to his virtue. The ceremony itself will be marred to some extent; but again, that's part of the point. The gesture must be asserted against something as well as for something; and in this case it will be asserted against the putative insensitivity of those wearing the caps and gowns.

The gesture would not be nearly so juicy if those worried about Bangladesh were being asked to give up a bottle of Scotch or three visits to the local movie. What is desired is a small investment in conspicuous virtue.

Furthermore, it is important that the gesture mar — if ever so slightly — something traditional and academic.

Bangladesh must make its presence felt within the strictly academic occasion. In its own meager little way, therefore, the gesture politicizes the occasion, it asserts the primacy of "the world" as against the academic. It is a residue, therefore, of the same impulse that, two years ago, made Shakespeare or sociology give way to professors' random inspirations on Vietnam. In its meager little way, the gesture tries to reassert the primacy of politics in an academic setting.

TODAY In History

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Today is Tuesday, June 20, the 172nd day of 1972. There are 194 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1863, West Virginia became the 35th state to be admitted to the Union.

In 1867, President Andrew Johnson proclaimed the treaty for the purchase of Alaska from Russia.

In 1963, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to establish the so-called "hot-line" communications system between Washington and Moscow.

I find fascinating, too, he proffered claim that this kind of thing represents the goal, the meaning of a liberal arts education — in effect, the claim that the relief of suffering is the highest goal of our intellectual and spiritual life. But is the relief of suffering the highest goal of education, or of the civilization of the West? Perhaps, for many, it has become so. I have seen opinion surveys that ranked "compassion" as the highest virtue.

But St. Francis would not have placed it there. He would have said "sanctity." Goethe would have said "nobility and truth." Hemingway would have said "courage is grace under pressure." Dante would have said "to use the world well." What those college seniors have learned, if they have learned anything at all, is that Western civilization, and indeed life itself, embrace a variety of goals — and that the relief of physical suffering is probably not the highest among them. I, at least, would rank high among those goals a contemptuous refusal to countenance puritanical incursions upon our traditional ceremonies.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

Over a year ago the House of Representatives passed an omnibus Social Security bill. Since that time the Senate Finance Committee has labored over this proposal and on Tuesday finally gave its tentative approval to a bill increasing Social Security benefits by 10 per cent. This would be financed by boosting the Social Security payroll tax by as much as $113 a year. This is double the 5 per cent increase voted by the House. Both versions provide for an automatic increase in benefits tied to the cost of living index, higher minimum benefits for workers with long-term low paying jobs, increases for widows, and increases to $2,000 a year in the outside earnings limitations.

When the bill is considered on the Senate floor later this summer, amendments will be offered to raise the across the board increase to 20 per cent. A bitter floor fight is expected over the controversial new workfare program adopted by the Senate Committee. After the bill has passed in the upper chamber, the differences between the House and Senate versions will have to be resolved in a Senate-House Conference Committee. Benefit increases will ultimately be approved in this session of Congress.

On Thursday, the House voted appropriations for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and related agencies. The programs funded include such service fields as medical research, mental health centers, hospital construction, alcoholism prevention, health manpower, public libraries, nutrition programs for the elderly, and the Social Security Administration.

In the labor area the bill will provide money to continue the vital operations of the National Labor Relations Board, the National Mediation Board, federal occupational safety programs, the Manpower Administration, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The House of Representatives concluded the week's legislative business by passing an appropriations bill for the Department of the Interior and related agencies. This measure will fund a multitude of the Department's important activities in the areas of conservation and the development of natural resources, fish, wildlife and national parks, mineral resources, forest fire control, administration of federal territories, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Recently this agency has received much public attention because it is so intimately involved in controversial projects involving the environment such as the proposed trans-Alaskan oil pipeline, commercial lumbering in national forests and the coastal offshore drilling for oil.

On Monday, the House also voted to expand the present military drug testing program to include all active duty servicemen and to provide treatment and rehabilitation where required. The bill contains a provision that a serviceman found to be an addict would be exempt from disciplinary action and could not receive other than an honorable discharge. An addict about to be discharged could be committed to a treatment center against his will for a 30 day period. This would include the involuntary commitment of veterans for up to 30 days after discharge.

At the present time, only servicemen based on foreign soil are being tested for drug addiction.

The State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 was scheduled for consideration by the House this week for the second time. Again, it fell victim to the same difficulties the bill experienced when it was scheduled for a House floor vote two weeks ago. After some careful head counting, the leadership on both sides of the aisle determined that there may not be a sufficient number of favorable votes available to pass this historic measure. This precedent setting program is designed to aid our financially pressed state and municipal governments and relieve some of the pressures on the local tax base. The measure has the active support of the Nixon Administration, the nation's governors and mayors and the leadership of both major political parties. I sponsored similar legislation and will support its enactment. Hopefully the bill will be brought up for a vote this week.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 children die each year in the United States as victims of sudden infant death syndrome or "crib death." The disease is the largest killer of infants between the ages of one month and one year. The syndrome kills twice as many children as cancer each year and is second only to accidents as the most frequent cause of death for children under age 15. The disease is neither predictable nor preventable. Little money has been spent on research into the cause of the disease.

The Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee has reported a resolution to assure that maximum resources and effort are concentrated on medical research into sudden infant death syndrome.

War Cost Escalates

Whatever members of the House and Senate appropriations committees had been expecting to hear concerning future costs of the Vietnam war, it was not what Sec. of Defense Laird provided in the way of estimates.

During his all-day testimony before the two panels, Laird said the expanded United States response to the invasion from the North at the minimum would add several billions of dollars in new costs by the end of the year.

It could reach as much as $5 billion in additional spending, Laird testified, if the heavy bombardment of the North and related activities continue through December. Figures on the cost of the war prior to the enemy's offensive have not been released, but the Defense department's estimate for the fiscal year ending June 30 was $7 billion. Adding $5 billion to that would indicate an increase of about 70 percent in U.S. war spending.

Laird gave two reasons for the heavy added cost: the munitions being rained on North Vietnam and replacement of equipment destroyed by the enemy in ground fighting. The increased spending will be considerably below the top annual outlay of $22 billion during the Johnson years, even if it reaches the maximum limit of $12 billion forecast by Laird.

This time, however, the escalating costs are occurring at a time when American ground pressure is greatly curtailed and scheduled to decline further over the remainder of the year.

Sanctuary Boycott

Organized boycotts frequently injure innocent parties. But the order of the Air Line Pilots Association to its members on 36 U.S. airlines to refuse to fly to countries which provide a haven for airline hijackers cannot be faulted on any ground.

It would have been preferable for diplomacy to take care of pirate sanctuaries. But this is impossible. Only the airlines and their employees can take effective action against such sanctuaries as Cuba and Algeria.

Airline crew members have risked their lives too many times to be expected to continue to offer themselves as pawns in mushrooming hijacking incidents without taking some form of retaliation. The number of flights from the U.S. to pirate havens may be small, but the publicity effect of the boycott the pilots association has ordered could help isolate the sanctuaries from other points of origin as well.

Lincoln Theory

A heart specialist who has spent the last 10 years researching the health of Abraham Lincoln has an interesting theory about the nation's 16th president. Lincoln, says Dr. Harold Schwartz of Lynwood, Calif., probably would have lived no more than six months past his assassination had he died naturally.

The reason, Schwartz claims, is that Lincoln probably suffered from a heart condition in its advanced stages.

"Lincoln had a very advanced form of a physical problem called aortic insufficiency," Schwartz believes. "It was undoubtedly so advanced that Lincoln was going downhill at the time of his fatal visit to the theater."

An interesting theory which, if true, adds another quirk of fate to history's pages. At this point in time that is what it must remain — a theory.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Is the individual investor a dying breed, about to be buried in the avalanche of trading emanating from the big institutional traders who now account for most of the volume on the New York Stock Exchange?

That notion is broadcast from time to time, and not without some justification. Many individual investors of long standing have canceled out their accounts in recent years. Many others are steady sellers.

Meanwhile, the growth of institutions such as mutual and pension funds has been phenomenal. And their aggressive-ness as traders has grown too.

During the 1965-1971 period, institutional volume grew by what Dr. William Freund, NYSE chief economist, calls an "astounding 25 per cent a year" and now accounts for 68 per cent of all trading, in dollar terms.

But, he points out, all that growth isn't at the expense of the individual investor. The latter's transactions grew 8 per cent a year in the same period, and new accounts for 32 per cent of trading.

In other words, it is true that the institutions are more dominant in the market than they were, and it is true that the individual investor carries less trading weight than before.

But it isn't true that there are fewer individual investors now than at any earlier period. The number of such investors is now estimated at 32.5 million, up from 31.9 million last year.

One misimpression about the market is that mutual funds are the most powerful institutional traders. Not so at all. They are the most obvious, because they sell shares to the public, but they are from the biggest.

That distinction belongs to the private noninsured pension funds, which now have more than $125 billion in assets, $85 billion of which is in common stocks.

By comparison, the mutual funds have total assets of about $55 billion, with all but $3 billion of it in common stocks.

Nevertheless, it is these two institutional trading categories that have caused the individual investor to become less and less powerful in the market. Each year these two fund categories are more influential in setting prices.

Not only are private pension funds growing in size, but a tendency now is to seek maximum returns in the stock market rather than from more conservative investments in bonds.

And not only are mutual funds growing in size and number, but they are markedly more active traders than they were 10 years ago. Some funds now turn over their portfolios 100 per cent within one year.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . .

he or she will be one of those delightful young people with much dynamism and charm who will have the determination and will to accomplish almost anything decided upon, so make sure your child has only the finest types of playmates around. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

Some very practical pointers have come to my attention and I would like to pass them on to you.

Dr. Samuel W. Gollub, of St. Louis, says, "The quickest way to stop a simple nosebleed is this: Have the person sit or lie down. If he has a loose clot of blood or mucus in his nose have him gently blow this out, even if it temporarily increases bleeding."

"Now, he presses his finger over the nostril that is not bleeding, and inhales slowly and deeply through the bleeding nostril, exhaling through his mouth."

"The air, passing over the bleeding point, quickly stops the bleeding."

"If both nostrils are bleeding, try to inhale and exhale through both nostrils."

It's worth a try. If it is not effective, then packing the nose with absorbent cotton, the older approach, should be resorted to.

Dr. Ben Kritchman, of Jamaica, N.Y., points out: "When you need a urine specimen from a young child, you can get it quickly by running your hand lightly over his lower back area (over the spine) for a few seconds. This induces a reflex action to urinate, and in no time you have the specimen."

Dr. Jeffrey Balfus, of Palo Alto, Calif., makes this interesting observation:

"Every youngster with diabetes must be taught to administer his own insulin injections. I ask the patient to hold an ice cube on his thigh for two or three minutes until slight redness (erythema) develops. I then tell him to touch the needle to his skin with gradually increasing pressure."

"He soon realizes he is experiencing no real pain. The next step is a quick push and the job is done."

The ingenuity of doctors all over the world is great. Many of their personal techniques are based on consideration and caring for the special needs of their patients.

They unselfishly then pass on their ingenious ideas and devices so that other doctors can offer their patients the benefits of such creativity.

Every single person in America can become a monitor to report and control gross evidence of air pollution. Only with public pressure by those who care and want to continue to breathe can our air be once again purified . . . free of smoke, filth, exhausts, and noxious, polluted gases.

HANOVER, N. Y. (KFS) — A really bad idea, like a really good one, deserves a certain celebrity, and one has just turned up that is so sick — yet also in its way so revealing — that I ought to pass it along and also look it over a bit.

College commencements this year, to the chagrin of some, have returned to their customary pattern. Under the trees, amid balmy spring weather, students are receiving their degrees. Parents are proud. The familiar ceremony is reassuring. No one is turning up in the nude. No one is presenting a live pig to the college president.

At Dartmouth, however, paid radio advertisements have been emanating from the chaplain's office urging that graduating seniors take the $6 they would normally spend on renting a cap and gown and, instead, give the money to Bangladesh.

When I first tuned in on one of these ads I could scarcely believe it, but sure enough, there was the student voice, full of idealistic excitement, floating this very suggestion, and not only floating it but putting it forward as an example of the sort of thing Dartmouth really stands for, a gesture that would sum up the meaning of a four-year liberal arts education.

Now there's nothing wrong with giving $6, or $600, to Bangladesh if you feel like it. After all, it's your dough. But why, I wondered, was the chaplain's office urging students to give that particular six bucks to Bangladesh? Why pick on the cap and gown?

For one thing, because it makes the gesture so conspicuous. Walking gownless in the procession, the donor of the six clams will call everyone's attention to his virtue. The ceremony itself will be marred to some extent; but again, that's part of the point. The gesture must be asserted against something as well as for something; and in this case it will be asserted against the putative insensitivity of those wearing the caps and gowns.

The gesture would not be nearly so juicy if those worried about Bangladesh were being asked to give up a bottle of Scotch or three visits to the local movie. What is desired is a small investment in conspicuous virtue. Furthermore, it is important that the gesture mar — if ever so slightly — something traditional and academic.

Bangladesh must make its presence felt within the strictly academic occasion. In its own meager little way, therefore, the gesture politicizes the occasion, it asserts the primacy of "the world" as against the academic. It is a residue, therefore, of the same impulse that, two years ago, made Shakespeare or sociology give way to the professors' random inspirations on Vietnam. In its meager little way, the gesture tries to reassert the primacy of politics in an academic setting.

TODAY In History

Today in History
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Tuesday, June 20, the 172nd day of 1972. There are 194 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

In 1863, West Virginia became the 35th state to be admitted to the Union.

In 1867, President Andrew Johnson proclaimed the treaty for the purchase of Alaska from Russia.

In 1963, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to establish the so-called "hot-line" communications system between Washington and Moscow.

Commencement

By JEFFERY HART

I find fascinating, too, he proffered claim that this kind of thing represents the goal, the meaning of a liberal arts education — in effect, the claim that the relief of suffering is the highest goal of our intellectual and spiritual life. But is the relief of suffering the highest goal of education, or of the civilization of the West? Perhaps, for many, it has become so. I have seen opinion surveys that ranked "compassion" as the highest virtue.

But St. Francis would not have placed it there. He would have said "sanctity." Goethe would have said "nobility and truth." Hemingway would have said "courage is grace under pressure." Dante would have said "to use the world well." What those college seniors have learned, if they have learned anything at all, is that Western civilization, and indeed life itself, embrace a variety of goals — and that the relief of physical suffering is probably not the highest among them. I, at least, would rank high among those goals a contemptuous refusal to countenance puritanical incursions upon our traditional ceremonies.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

Over a year ago the House of Representatives passed an omnibus Social Security bill. Since that time the Senate Finance Committee has labored over this proposal and on Tuesday finally gave its tentative approval to a bill increasing Social Security benefits by 10 per cent. This would be financed by boosting the Social Security payroll tax by as much as $113 a year. This is double the 5 per cent increase voted by the House. Both versions provide for an automatic increase in benefits tied to the cost of living index, higher minimum benefits for workers with long-term low paying jobs, increases for widows, and increases to $2,000 a year in the outside earnings limitations.

When the bill is considered on the Senate floor later this summer, amendments will be offered to raise the across the board increase to 20 per cent. A bitter floor fight is expected over the controversial new workfare program adopted by the Senate Committee. After the bill has passed in the upper chamber, the differences between the House and Senate versions will have to be resolved in a Senate-House Conference Committee. Benefit increases will ultimately be approved in this session of Congress.

On Thursday, the House voted appropriations for the Department of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and related agencies. The programs funded include such service fields as medical research, mental health centers, hospital construction, alcoholism prevention, health manpower, public libraries, nutrition programs for the elderly, and the Social Security Administration.

In the labor area the bill will provide money to continue the vital operations of the National Labor Relations Board, the National Mediation Board, federal occupational safety programs, the Manpower Administration, and the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The House of Representatives concluded the week's legislative business by passing an appropriations bill for the Department of the Interior and related agencies. This measure will fund a multitude of the Department's important activities in the areas of conservation and the development of natural resources, fish, wildlife and national parks, mineral resources, forest fire control, administration of federal territories, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Recently this agency has received much public attention effort because it is so intimately involved in controversial projects involving the environment such as the proposed trans-Alaskan oil pipeline, commercial lumbering in national forests and the coastal offshore drilling for oil.

On Monday, the House also voted to expand the present military drug testing program to include all active duty servicemen and to provide treatment and rehabilitation where required. The bill contains a provision that a serviceman found to be an addict would be exempt from disciplinary action and could not receive other than an honorable discharge. An addict about to be discharged could be committed to a treatment center against his will for a 30 day period. This would include the involuntary commitment of veterans for up to 30 days after discharge.

At the present time, only servicemen based on foreign soil are being tested for drug addiction.

The State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 was scheduled for consideration by the House this week for the second time. Again, it fell victim to the same difficulties the bill experienced when it was scheduled for a House floor vote two weeks ago. After some careful head counting, the leadership on both sides of the aisle determined that there may not be a sufficient number of favorable votes available to pass this historic measure. This predestined setting program is designed to aid our financially pressed state and municipal governments and relieve some of the pressures on the local tax base. The measure has the active support of the Nixon Administration, the nation's governors and mayors and the leadership of both major political parties. I sponsored similar legislation and will support its enactment. Hopefully the bill will be brought up for a vote this week.

Readers Speak Out On Bill's 'Act'

DEAR ABBY: The mother who said her son put on an act in public, slurping, giggling, crossing his eyes and falling all over the place "like a retarded person" owes the retarded an apology.

My brother is a retarded mongoloid, and he never behaved any such way. In fact, his manners are far above most normal people.

I've also visited the State Hospital for Retarded in Fort Wayne, Ind., and I've never seen anything but politeness and good manners there.

YOUNG HOOSIER
DEAR ABBY: I am writing for the Comparative Religions class of Thomasville High School, Thomasville Ga.

Our class consists of students from the 9th through 12th grades, and we'd like for "Bill" to know how his peers feel about his behavior:

Views On TV - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Perpetual People Puzzle," ABC's Monday night special, was a grab-bag of entertainment—some songs, a dance number, a little satire, some comedy monologues, a sports-caster trying to be a comedian at his own expense, and right in the middle of all the action, a very moving dramatic vignette.

The hour program had all the earmarks of a pilot for a series. In structure, it was a cross between Public Broadcasting's "Great American Dream Machine" and NBC's "Laugh-In."

Singer-dancer Gwen Verdon opened the show with "Chicago" sung and danced in an airline terminal at Kennedy Airport in New York as some passengers stared wide-eyed. Miss Verdon and her fellow dancers would up rising slowly around the big metal wheel from which passengers grab their luggage.

There was Richie Haven and his musical group with a couple of sad songs, and Jack Cassidy singing through a broad satire on TV's situation comedies.

Cutting in from start to finish was ABC's man about sports, Howard Cosell, reporting on a "Commuter 500" race. This was three working people—a girl on a motorcycle, a man on a train and a man in a car—supposedly racing to get to the office first. Cosell's play-by-play and the race were supposed to be funny, and maybe they were for viewers who are Cosell fans.

And the drama: James Earl Jones played a freshly released ex-convict riding a bus back home and worrying about whether his wife wants him back. Three sympathetic fellow passengers bring him to the point of telling how, if she wants him back, there will be a yellow handkerchief tied to a tree near the bus stop.

It built nicely to a climax—a tree festooned with yellow banners.

A lot of the show didn't work too well, other portions seemed forced and self-conscious, but all through it were rewarding moments.

Best of all, it was an effort to do something in the variety form that has not been copied all over the place.

Dan Blocker's recent death has left a big hole in the basic structure of NBC's "Bonanza." David Canary was brought back to the series almost immediately and Tim Matheson, once in "The Virginian" cast, will be introduced as a regular in the fourth or fifth episode of the fall season. He will play Griff King, an ex-convict brought to the ranch by Ben Cartwright. Young Mitch Vogel will continue as a regular for a third season.

But the Cartwright clan that began with four is down to two—Lorne Greene and Michael Landon.

Sex Counseling Boom Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sex researcher William H. Masters says a massive demand for counseling on sex will swamp the medical profession in the next two or three years.

Masters and his wife, Dr. Virginia Johnson Masters, said Sunday the public's sense of comfort in dealing with sexual inadequacy is increasing faster than it is among professionals.

They addressed an American Medical Association meeting on "Sexuality - Stability - A Healthy Community."

Cook was sentenced March 5 this year on a charge of failure to provide proper care and support for his family.

McMackin was sentenced May 10 on a charge of obtaining eight head of cattle from the Bowling Stock Yard with intent to defraud.

'Punch Mining' Eyed By Kentucky Official

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — State Reclamation Director Buddy A. Beach says his division will begin drafting new regulations to bring "punch mining" under Kentucky's new reclamation law.

That law, passed by the 1972 General Assembly, expands the definition of strip mining to include all surface operations, including access roads at any mine.

Punch mining involves the use of deep mining equipment to remove coal from an already stripped surface sea. Since coal is removed from shallow shafts cut into the highwall, the process is legally considered deep mining and not subject to Kentucky's strip mining law.

Red Cross Offers Aid In South Dakota

The South Dakota Disaster isn't the lead story of the day any longer. But the tragedy lingers on.

It will be months before the damage is repaired in this "worst disaster since Hurricane Camille". As long as it takes, Red Cross will be there. In fact, for 91 years the Red Cross has been the "Good Neighbor" to disaster victims.

Scores of Red Cross volunteers and staff diligently continue their round-the-clock efforts to restore normalcy to the lives of hundreds with clearly marked posters guiding victims to the service centers, where each family is interviewed, immediate assistance given and referred to the proper government agency, if they qualify for government assistance.

The Red Cross is being assisted by all government agencies, South Dakota National Guard, Mennonite Disaster Service and all the residents of the area who were not directly affected by the flood. Some 2000 refugees were housed in private homes of people in the community.

The American National Red Cross is attempting to raise Five Million Dollars to help in this and the many other disasters in the country. Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Readers Speak Out On Bill's 'Act'

DEAR ABBY: The mother who said her son put on an act in public, slurring, giggling, crossing his eyes and falling all over the place "like a retarded person" owes the retarded an apology.

My brother is a retarded mongoloid, and he never behaved any such way. In fact, his manners are far above most normal people.

I've also visited the State Hospital for Retarded in Fort Wayne, Ind., and I've never seen anything but politeness and good manners there.

YOUNG HOOSIER
DEAR ABBY: I am writing for the Comparative Religions class of Thomasville High School, Thomasville, Ga.

We held an interesting discussion on the letter from the mother whose 16-year-old son, Bill, mimicked a mentally retarded person "to make people laugh" and his father was his best audience.

Our class consists of students from the 9th through 12th grades, and we'd like for "Bill" to know how his peers feel about his behavior.

Views On TV-Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Perpetual People Puzzle," ABC's Monday night special, was a grab-bag of entertainment—some songs, a dance number, a little satire, some comedy monologues, a sports-caster trying to be a comedian at his own expense, and right in the middle of all the action, a very moving dramatic vignette.

The hour program had all the earmarks of a pilot for a series. In structure, it was a cross between Public Broadcasting's "Great American Dream Machine" and NBC's "Laugh-In."

Singer-dancer Gwen Verdon opened the show with "Chicago" sung and danced in an airline terminal at Kennedy Airport in New York as some passengers stared wide-eyed. Miss Verdon and her fellow dancers would up rising slowly around the big metal wheel from which passengers grab their luggage.

There was Richie Haven and his musical group with a couple of sad songs, and Jack Cassidy singing through a broad satire on TV's situation comedies.

Cutting in from start to finish was ABC's man about sports, Howard Cosell, reporting on a "Commuter 500" race. This was three working people—a girl on a motorcycle, a man on a train and a man in a car—supposedly racing to get to the office first. Cosell's play-by-play and the race were supposed to be funny, and maybe they were for viewers who are Cosell fans.

And the drama: James Earl Jones played a freshly released ex-convict riding a bus back home and worrying about whether his wife wants him back. Three sympathetic fellow passengers bring him to the point of telling how, if she wants him back, there will be a yellow handkerchief tied to a tree near his bus stop.

It built nicely to a climax—a tree festooned with yellow banners.

A lot of the show didn't work too well, other portions seemed forced and self-conscious, but all through it were rewarding moments.

Best of all, it was an effort to do something in the variety form that has not been copied all over the place.

Dan Blocker's recent death has left a big hole in the basic structure of NBC's "Bonanza." David Canary was brought back to the series almost immediately and Tim Matheson, once in "The Virginian" cast, will be introduced as a regular in the fourth or fifth episode of the fall season. He will play Griff King, an ex-convict brought to the ranch by Ben Cartwright. Young Mitch Vogel will continue as a regular for a third season.

But the Cartwright clan that began with four is down to two—Lorne Greene and Michael Landon.

Sex Counseling Boom Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sex researcher William H. Masters says a massive demand for counseling on sex will swamp the medical profession in the next two or three years. Masters and his wife, Dr. Virginia Johnson Masters, said Sunday the public's sense of comfort in dealing with sexual inadequacy is increasing faster than it is among professionals. They addressed an American Medical Association meeting on "Sexuality—Stability—A Healthy Community."

Summer Weekends Offer Variety Of Trip Activities

Pleasant summer weekends are a temptation to start a trip with family or friends, and for the first weekend of summer, here are some suggestions for nearby day trips:

Bob Evans Farm Center, Rio Grande — This weekend a blacksmith and a portrait painter will be included in the activities at the admission-free entertainment center which also features friendly farm animals, a collection of southern Ohio wildlife, the only band of wild Spanish Mustangs east of the Mississippi, the Old Welsh Windmill, log cabins and the Homestead built in 1825.

The blacksmith, Glenn Fisher, is a Piketon engineer whose hobby includes the practice of blacksmithing in the old tradition. He will set up his anvil and tools in the Farm Center and demonstrate the making of various metal objects, including horse shoes, in the old 19th Century way.

Mrs. Sara Moshier of Gallipolis is a portrait painter who will do portraits and sketches at the Farm Center during the weekend and display her other paintings, many of which will be for sale. She has gained wide reputation as a fine artist and portrait painter.

Closer by is the Mini Festival at Washington C. H. Circleville and its area residents have been invited to participate in the festival Saturday and Sunday in Gardner Park. This is the football field where the Circleville and Washington C. H. football teams meet every other year.

Interested artists may enter displays for exhibit or sale in the Arts and Crafts show which will be held just inside the fenced in area of Gardner Park. It will open 9 a.m. Saturday for artists to set up displays. More information is available to interested persons by calling Mrs. Harry Thrallkill in Washington C. H.

Prisoners Seek Their Release

Petitions from Robert Josiah Cook, Circleville and Paul Eddie McMackin for a hearing before the court on possible early release from their 1 to 3 year prison terms, have been received here.

Judge William Ammer has agreed to the hearings and has ordered the men returned to Pickaway County from the state penal institutions where they are now housed.

Cook was sentenced March 5 this year on a charge of failure to provide proper care and support for his family. McMackin was sentenced May 10 on a charge of obtaining eight head of cattle from the Bowling Stock Yard with intent to defraud.

Cincinnati Orchestra and Ballet companies will present concerts at 1 and 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, for a small admission. The Saturday afternoon performance of "The Unicorn" by the ballet group will be free of charge.

Sunday evening after picnic time and the Art Show, the orchestra will present a special All-American Program with guest pianist, composer, vocalist, star football player Mike Reid. The Miami Trace Singers will perform music from "The Wizard of Oz" and the orchestra will perform Aaron Copelan's famous "A Lincoln Portrait" with narration by Mike Reid.

'Punch Mining' Eyed By Kentucky Official

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — State Reclamation Director Buddy A. Beach says his division will begin drafting new regulations to bring "punch mining" under Kentucky's new reclamation law.

That law, passed by the 1972 General Assembly, expands the definition of strip mining to include all surface operations, including access roads at any mine.

Punch mining involves the use of deep mining equipment to remove coal from an already stripped surface area. Since coal is removed from shallow shafts cut into the highwall, the process is legally considered deep mining and not subject to Kentucky's strip mining law.

Red Cross Offers Aid In South Dakota

The South Dakota Disaster isn't the lead story of the day any longer. But the tragedy lingers on.

It will be months before the damage is repaired in this "worst disaster since Hurricane Camille". As long as it takes, Red Cross will be there. In fact, for 91 years the Red Cross has been the "Good Neighbor" to disaster victims.

Scores of Red Cross volunteers and staff diligently continue their round-the-clock efforts to restore normalcy to the lives of hundreds with clearly marked posters guiding victims to the service centers, where each family is interviewed, immediate assistance given and referred to the proper government agency, if they qualify for government assistance.

The Red Cross is being assisted by all government agencies, South Dakota National Guard, Mennonite Disaster Service and all the residents of the area who were not directly affected by the flood. Some 2000 refugees were housed in private homes of people in the community.

Shaker Village Toured

Mrs. Elzie Brooks sponsored and supervised a bus trip recently to Pleasant Hill, Kentucky's restored Shaker Village.

The chartered bus left Robtown at 7 a.m. June 6th and passengers had breakfast at the Country Kitchen in Cincinnati. They proceeded to Kentucky, where dinner was served at noon in the dining room, one of five, of the Trustees' House in Shakerstown.

Pleasant Hill began in 1805, when three Mercer County farmers accepted the Shaker faith with its demands of celibate purity, confession of sins, separation from the world, and community of goods. By 1820 the village of nearly 500 industrious inhabitants had achieved a prosperous and self-contained existence.

The Shakers were a practical and advanced people in the agricultural and mechanical arts. They led the state in scientific farming, in propagating new strains of sheep, hogs and cattle, and in devising and testing new agricultural implements. Their brooms, preserves, garden seeds and herbs made the name Shaker well known in the market places of the midwest and south.

The small village, composed of 23 buildings, is owned by Shakerstown, at Pleasant Hill, a non-profit organization. It is situated high above the palisades of the Kentucky River in the fertile blue grass country, between Lexington and Harrodsburg. With its simple dignity and rural setting, it represents the finest example of an early 19th century settlement. Exhibition houses and shops furnished with original Shaker pieces are open to the public.

Leaving Kentucky, the busload had the evening meal in the cafeteria at the Tri-County Shopping Mall in Cincinnati.

Taking the trip were: Mrs. Ben Walker, Mrs. Maxine Brigner, Mrs. Wendell Neff, Mrs. Mary Besanson, Mrs. Albert Newlon, Mrs. Donald Watt, Mrs. Howard Koch, Miss Mary Shortridge, Mrs. Robert Drummond, Miss Pamela Rhoades.

Mrs. Willard Duddleson, Mrs. Florence Neal, Mrs. George Mowery, Mrs. Paul Thompson, Mrs. Emma McGee, Mrs. Hazel Hudson, Mrs. Dagmire Meyers, Miss Bess Good, Mrs. Cathryn Hawks, Mrs. Sam Scothorn, Mrs. Ray Badger, Mrs. Charles Huston.

26 Ex-Lima State Employees Sue Newspaper, Officials

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-six former Lima State Hospital employees are suing a Cleveland newspaper and a number of state officials for $5.2 million.

The 26 were among 31 former hospital employees indicted last November by a special state grand jury for alleged patient abuse. Twenty-eight were still working at the hospital and were dismissed.

The grand jury investigation followed reports of brutality and poor conditions at the hospital in several newspapers, among them the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The 26 allege in their suit that the Plain Dealer paid special state attorney Robert Milbaugh, who helped present the state's case in the jury proceedings, $10,000 for information about patients from confidential hospital files.

A Plain Dealer spokesman termed the charge "ridiculous."

The suit in U.S. District Court here also claims that the newspaper and state officials conspired "to prevent by threat and intimidation" the plaintiffs from performing their duties at from performing their duties at the hospital.

The 26 are seeking the damages plus back pay from the time they were dismissed. They also contend their dismissals were unconstitutional since they allegedly did not have hearings on them within the statutory ten days.

Named with the Plain Dealer and Milbaugh as defendants were:

Atty. Gen. William Brown; Auditor Joseph Ferguson; James Hughel, chairman of the state Personnel Board of Review; Kenneth D. Gaver, director of the state Department of Mental Hygiene and Corrections; state Treasurer Gertrude Donahay; Paul Corey, director of the state Personnel Department; Dr. Lowell Cunningham, director of the Department of Psychiatric Criminology, and Stephen Parisi and Nicholas Curci, special assistants to Milbaugh.

26 Ex-Lima State Employees Sue Newspaper, Officials

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-six former Lima State Hospital employees are suing a Cleveland newspaper and a number of state officials for $5.2 million.

The 26 were among 31 former hospital employees indicted last November by a special state grand jury for alleged patient abuse. Twenty-eight were still working at the hospital and were dismissed.

The grand jury investigation followed reports of brutality and poor conditions at the hospital in several newspapers, among them the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The 26 allege in their suit that the Plain Dealer paid special state attorney Robert Milbaugh, who helped present the state's case in the jury proceedings, $10,000 for information about patients from confidential hospital files.

A Plain Dealer spokesman termed the charge "ridiculous."

The suit in U.S. District Court here also claims that the newspaper and state officials conspired "to prevent by threat and intimidation" the plaintiffs from performing their duties at the hospital.

The 26 are seeking the damages plus back pay from the time they were dismissed. They also contend their dismissals were unconstitutional since they allegedly did not have hearings on them within the statutory ten days.

Named with the Plain Dealer and Milbaugh as defendants were:

Atty. Gen. William Brown; Auditor Joseph Ferguson; James Hughel, chairman of the state Personnel Board of Review; Kenneth D. Gaver, director of the state Department of Mental Hygiene and Corrections; state Treasurer Gertrude Donahey; Paul Corey, director of the state Personnel Department; Dr. Lowell Cunningham, director of the Department of Psychiatric Criminology; and Stephen Parisi and Nicholas Curci, special assistants to Milbaugh.

Cosell Blasts Some Favorite Sports Villains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sports commentator Howard Cosell rained verbal blows on some of his favorite athletic villains Monday and urged Congress to create a commission to regulate what he said are the excesses of professional sports.

"There is a curious legend that every athlete is a shining manhood, that every contest is inherently pure and that every owner a dedicated and selfless man concerned only with the good of the sport," said Cosell, a reporter and commentator for the ABC network.

And he told a Senate subcommittee sports writers have added to the legend and have helped make professional sports "a privileged sanctuary from life—a looking glass world—a Camelot."

It's no Camelot, said Cosell, as he proceeded to complain about sports monopolies, football games which only a privileged few can attend, TV blackouts of major local games and switches of baseball and football franchises motivated only by profit.

He put much of the blame on the owners and declared, "I do not buy their plea that they should be allowed to clean their own houses."

"They've evidenced a massive lack of desire to do so in all the years I've been on the sports scene."

He generally supported creating a national sports commission and told Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., the subcommittee chairman, that it should have the power to suspend or cancel team franchises for serious violations of regulations.

Pirates And Astros Win Important Games

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Pittsburgh Pirates blasted their way out of a rut Monday night, but the Houston Astros have found a groove they'd like to stay in.

The Pirates, shut out by San Diego 4-0 and 1-0 in their last two starts and scoreless for 23 innings, erupted for 16 hits—including home runs by Roberto Clemente, Gene Alley and Al Oliver—and pasted the Los Angeles Dodgers 13-3.

The Astros, meanwhile, got their second consecutive one-hit pitching performance when Larry Dierker limited New York to a lone single as Houston defeated the Mets 3-0 for the Astros' fifth straight victory.

As a result, Pittsburgh moved back into first place in the National League East by one-half game over the Mets, while the Astros pulled within a half-game of first-place Cincinnati in the NL West. The Reds were blanked by Montreal 2-0.

In the only other National League baseball action, the Chicago Cubs nipped San Francisco 7-6 in 11 innings. Philadelphia's game at Atlanta and San Diego's contest at St. Louis were rained out.

Local Youngsters Compete In Ohio Jaycees Meet

Eleven young athletes from Pickaway County competed in the Ohio Jaycees Junior Champ Track Meet Saturday at Steubenville.

Tom Frericks Circleville High School, captured the State Senior Division discus title with a toss of 165 feet 6 inches. He also placed second in the shot with a distance of 54 feet 7 inches.

Circleville's Frank Plescia was second in the intermediate division high jump with a leap of 5 feet 6 inches.

Frericks and Plescia are now eligible to compete in the Jaycee National Junior Championship to be held August 4-5 at Bowling Green.

Bill Toole, of Teays Valley High School, placed fourth in the intermediate division discus event with a distance of 127 feet 5 inches and was seventh in the shot with a toss of 40 feet 9 inches.

Other representatives of Pickaway County were J. Berrigan, John Morehart, Chris Payne, Matt McGowan, Mary Ann Morehart, Perri Martin, Natalie Martin and Nanette Martin.

Nearly 1,000 young athletes participated in the 12-hour event.

Pittsburgh ended its scoreless streak with two runs in the first inning off Don Sutton, 8-2—with both losses coming at the hands of the Pirates. The Bucs added three more runs in the fifth, one in the sixth, three in the seventh and four in the eighth.

"It really didn't matter who was pitching out there tonight," declared Oliver. "This team is loaded with talent, confidence and pride, and it just wanted to show the people something."

Meanwhile, at the Astrodome, Dierker showed the Houston fans something, to, duplicating Jerry Reuss' one-hit effort against the Phillies Sunday. It was only the eighth time back-to-back one-hitters have been pitched.

The lone safety off Dierker, 6-4, was a third inning single by Duffy Dyer.

Houston scored twice in the seventh on run-scoring singles by Lee May and Tommy Helms, then added another run in the ninth on another RBI single by May.

Motreal's Bill Stoneman shut out the Cincinnati Reds on four singles, while Tim Foli and Ron Woods drove in the Expos' runs with sacrifice flies.

Montreal Trips Reds In 2-0 Tilt

By BILL WINTER
Associated Press Sports Writer
CINCINNATI (AP)—Step right up folks, and meet Sparky Anderson—chief walnut hunter.

Anderson gave himself the title Monday night, moments after his Cincinnati Reds dropped their third game in the last four, a 2-0 decision to the Montreal Expos.

The Cincinnati manager recalled a key seventh inning situation, trailing 1-0, the Reds set slugger Tony Perez to the plate with two on and none out.

"Did I think about letting him sacrifice?" Anderson echoed a locker room question: "Nope. He's my hammer man. If he don't hit, I'll go out hunting walnuts."

Which Anderson may have been doing today, as Perez bounced into a double play to dampen the Reds' threat. Montreal hurler Bill Stoneman, 6-5, then retired Joe Hogue by diving for his foul pop in front of the Expos' dugout.

Stoneman worked out of another jam in the ninth, forcing Bobby Tolan into a double-play ball after the first two batters reached base, and retiring Johnny Bench on a game-ending pop to second base.

"It wasn't the best I've pitched this year," said Stoneman, "but it was one of the best."

Jack Billingham, 4-7, took the loss, allowing Montreal single runs in the seventh and eighth on sacrifice flies by Tim Rolli and Ron Woods.

The Reds managed only five hits off Stoneman, who said he worked mainly with the sinking fast ball and the changeup.

The double-play ball to Perez was "one of the worst pitches I threw all night," he said. "It was a slider to the middle of the plate."

Anderson was, as usual, philosophical.

"You play that many games," he said, "there's no way you can swing the bat (well) every day. You're going to go through these things."

The loss marked only the second shutout against the Reds this season. It dropped Cincinnati to 12-13 at home, compared to a lousy 23-9 mark on the road.

The Reds' loss, combined with Houston's 3-0 win over the New York Mets, cut Cincinnati's lead over the Astros to one-half game in the National League's Western Division.

The Reds and Expos meet in a single game tonight, with Jim McGlothlin, 3-4, expected to start for Cincinnati against Carl Morton, 2-7.

Elks Raps Legion In Major Contest

The Elks overwhelmed American Legion, 16-2, in the only Major League tilt Monday evening.

Toren Bensonhaver and Scott Sanders combined to hurl the win giving up only three hits, walking eight and fanning 14.

Bensonhaver smashed a homerun and a single for the Elks while Joe Mogan got a triple and a single, Mark Skinner a double, Glen McFarland hit a pair of doubles, and Chuck Boltenhouse, Marc Albright, Richard Fox, Fred Palm and John Harr each hit singles.

Bruce Hanningan, Don Hill and Tom McGuire were the three pitchers that Legion used. They allowed 12 hits, eight walks and fanned four.

McGuire, Hanningan and Marshall got the three hits for American Legion with singles.

Reggie Smith clouted two home runs and drove in five runs and Sony Siebert hurled a three-hitter as Boston whipped Texas. Siebert, 7-3, had a no-hitter until Ted Kubiak hit a pinch-double leading off the sixth inning. Rico Petrocelli and Danny Cater also homered for Boston.

The Angels overtook the Orioles with three runs in the sixth inning on a two-run triple by Lee Stanton and a RBI single by Leo Cardenas. Bobby Grich hit a two-run homer for Baltimore while Ken McMullen homered for California.

Mike Epstein hit a pair of home runs, then drew a walk with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to force across the tie-breaking run for Oakland. Norm Cash hit his 15th homer of the season for the Tigers.

Kochheiser's Edges Bankers In Pony Play

Kochheiser whizzed by Third National for their second straight win 12-8 in a Pony League game played Monday.

Bob Baranick and Riley Rose were the two pitchers used by Kochheiser allowing ten hits, walking seven and struck out seven.

Jeff Fraser hit a pair of doubles, Bob Fuller hit a double and a single, Allen Dray and Rocky Dean hit doubles and Rose got a couple singles.

Gary Wolford and Heb Lutz were on the mound for Third National as they gave up nine hits, walked seven and struck out eight.

Trevino Plans To Sponsor Women's Pro Tournament

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) —

Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Lee Trevino is planning on sponsoring a women's pro tournament in the El Paso area next fall.

"I'm involved in this development project, you see," Trevino said. "We're building a golf course. And we want to open it up with a tournament."

"What I want to do is get a good women's tournament. You know, $30,000 or $35,000 or something like that. It would cost too much to put on a men's tournament but we could swing one for the ladies without too much trouble."

"I'm going to try to set it up so they get the first class treatment a good rate on hotel rooms, transportation, all that sort of thing."

"I don't know what it's going to be called, whether my name will be on it or not, but we're going to do it."

Jack Nicklaus' victory in the U.S. open was a boom to the airlines business. At least two dozen sports writers—who hadn't planned to go previously—started scurrying for reservations to Edinburgh, Scotland when Nicklaus made the British Open the third leg on his hopes of a professional Grand Slam this season.

Mason Rudolph's comment after taking a wind-blown 80 in the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach:

"This course is built around my game. 'Way around it. They don't touch at any point.'"

You've seen the television commercial where Lee Trevino walks under a multi-colored light and perches on the edge of a pool table while he makes his spell.

The commercial was taped in his home.

"I got the pool table in just so friends could enjoy it when they come by," he said.

"I don't play much myself. Most of the time my son uses it. He uses it as a place to put up his electric train set."

Instead, the 25-year-old world record holder says, he is retiring from competitive track and field and wants to play professional basketball.

Stoneman worked out of another jam in the ninth, forcing Bobby Tolan into a double-play ball after the first two batters reached base, and retiring Johnny Bench on a game-ending pop to second base.

"It wasn't the best I've pitched this year," said Stoneman, "but it was one of the best."

Jack Billingham, 4-7, took the loss, allowing Montreal single runs in the seventh and eighth on sacrifice flies by Tim Lincecum and Ron Woods.

The Reds managed only five hits off Stoneman, who said he worked mainly with the sinking fast ball and the changeup.

The double-play ball to Perez was "one of the worst pitches I

Mazeroski Would Like To Coach

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirate second-baseman Bill Mazeroski, who plans to retire after this season, says he'd like to be a major league coach—but definitely not a manager.

"There's no way I want to get into managing the way it is today and get an ulcer," the 35-year-old six-time All-Star said before Monday's game with the Dodgers. "I'm just not the type of guy for that job."

After inserting one of his ever-present wads of chewing tobacco, "Maz" said he instead preferred a coaching job.

"I'd like to stay with Pittsburgh, if possible," he added.

Battling his waistline and his aging legs, the 5-foot-11, 203-pounder confirmed earlier that he planned to call it quits as a player after this season.

"It's almost certain," he said. "It's something that has been going through my mind for the past couple of years, and right now I am pretty much sure that this will be my last season."

Winner of eight Golden Gloves, Mazeroski has played in only 10 games this season and collected four hits in 14 times at bat.

"I think I still have the reflexes," the soft-spoken infielder said. "But it's my legs that are the main problem now."

Trevino Plans To Sponsor Women's Pro Tournament

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Lee Trevino is planning on sponsoring a women's pro tournament in the El Paso area next fall.

"I'm involved in this development project, you see," Trevino said. "We're building a golf course. And we want to open it up with a tournament."

"What I want to do is get a good women's tournament. You know, $30,000 or $35,000 or something like that. It would cost too much to put on a men's tournament but we could swing one for the ladies without too much trouble."

"I'm going to try to set it up so they get the first class treatment a good rate on hotel rooms, transportation, all that sort of thing."

"I don't know what it's going to be called, whether my name will be on it or not, but we're going to do it."

Jack Nicklaus' victory in the U.S. open was a boom to the airlines business. At least two dozen sports writers—who hadn't planned to go previously—started scurrying for reservations to Edinburgh, Scotland when Nicklaus made the British Open the third leg on his hopes of a professional Grand Slam this season.

Mason Rudolph's comment after taking a wind-blown 80 in the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach: "This course is built around my game. 'Way around it. They don't touch at any point."

You've seen the television commercial where Lee Trevino walks under a multi-colored light and perches on the edge of a pool table while he makes his spell.

The commercial was taped in his home.

"I got the pool table in just so friends could enjoy it when they come by," he said.

"I don't play much myself. Most of the time my son uses it. He uses it as a place to put up his electric train set."

Bob Beamon Won't Compete In Munich

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bob Beamon, who won a gold medal at the Olympics four years ago by long jumping more than a foot further than anyone else in history, says he won't be making an encore appearance at the 1972 games in Munich.

Instead, the 25-year-old world record holder says, he is retiring from competitive track and field and wants to play professional basketball.

Westfall Hires Coaches; Loses Board Member

Westfall Board approved employment Monday of thirteen new teachers, including a new football coach, John Glanton from Circleville, then accepted the resignation of a board member.

Meeting in regular session last night, the board welcomed Gordon Massie, newly-hired local superintendent for the Westfall District, who sat in on their assembly.

At the end of the meeting, Eugene Bush offered his resignation to his fellow board members. Bush claims that an increased work load at the Williamsport post office prevents him from devoting time to his board duties. The board will appoint someone to fill the unexpired term which runs to Dec. 31, 1973.

Though each said he had hoped for stronger legislation, each said he'd rather take it than have no bill at all.

That, said Kurfess, is the way the game is played at this point in the session.

He denied charges by Democrats that special interest groups had played an overly active role in polishing the bill over the weekend.

"They (the administration) made the decision to go with it. If they have changed their minds, I am perfectly willing to vote in Rules Committee to send the bill right back to committee again," he said.

The bill has been considered a "must" for passage by the Gilligan administration. The measure shifts to the new cabinet level Environmental Protection Agency almost exclusive command over state air, water and noise pollution control programs and waste disposal activities. The programs are now spread through a number of Ohio departments.

Failure to conform with state EPA regulations under the bill carries stiff fines of $10,000 a day. Those who falsify reports to the agency face a $25,000 fine.

The legislation, passed last month by the Senate in much different form, also bans indefinitely drilling for oil and gas in Lake Erie.

The bill does not, however, provide for citizen suits against polluters, a provision that Celeste and other hard line environmentalists had insisted upon.

The provision was part of the bill during its stay in subcommittee, but was tossed out when the bill moved up to full committee discussion.

On that point, at least, lobbyists for trade associations held sway. They argued that such a provision would invite harassment court actions by environmental groups against Ohio industry.

The bill does provide a procedure for appealing decisions of the agency and its director by citizens "aggrieved or adversely affected."

But the appeal passes first to a three-member EPA review board, then to the courts.

Efforts are expected to on the House floor to reinstate the permissive citizen suit provision into the bill.

It passed by the House, the legislation will still face tough going in a joint conference committee. It is there that significance differences between House and Senate versions will have to be worked out before the bill can go to the governor for signing into law.

Police Checking College Break In

City police are investigating a breaking and entering at the Circleville Bible College, E. Ohio St., sometime Sunday night.

Entry to the building was gained by breaking a ground floor window.

Handles were pried off three office doors and the rooms ransacked. School officials have been unable to determine what is missing at the present time.

Police were also notified that four windows were broken at the rear of Nicholas Drive School.

Judge Voids Man

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has handed Democratic party reformers a setback in their effort to ensure selection of women, minorities and young people as national-convention delegates.

Coming just three weeks before the convention opens, the order left reformers and regulars alike confused about the legal status of more than one-third of the delegates.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. struck down rules requiring:

—That states apportion delegate slates to include blacks, women and young people "in reasonable relationship to the group's population presence in the state."

—That delegates must not be chosen by party officials elected prior to this year, a rule designed to chip away at the traditional control party bosses hold over delegate selection in some states.

St. Petersburg and neighboring towns.

Flood waters more than 3 feet deep were reported in several neighborhoods in Pinellas County.

Electrical power and telephone service were interrupted during the day for more than 1,000 homes, and when the flood waters subsided, poisonous snakes, scorpions and spiders turned up in residential sections.

"I killed a 5-foot rattlesnake in my yard," one St. Petersburg man reported. "The guy next door killed a coral snake."

Four persons died Monday and several others disappeared when a tornado sliced through three Okeechobee mobile home parks "like a freight train," as on witness described it. About 40 injuries were reported.

Several other twisters ripped through Brevard County on the Atlantic Coast Monday, destroying scores of homes, damaging 60 light planes at Merritt Island Airport and peeling walls from several apartment houses.

Sixteen houses were lifted off their foundations and a $40,000 yacht vanished into the sky, according to reports from Alligator Point, a hook shaped peninsula in northwest Florida.

Ohio High Court Eyes Cuyahoga Election Firings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court today continued to ponder what action it will take in the Cuyahoga County elections board dispute.

The high court is considering appeals from the four county elections board members fired last week by Secretary of State Ted Brown.

The board members said the dismissals were illegal because there were no hearings beforehand, and the court stayed the firings until it could review the case.

Atty. Gen. William Brown told the high court Monday the secretary of state's action was legal because hearings were held.

Demo Reforms

der immediately, said committee attorney Joseph A. Califano Jr.

Hart delivered the opinion in a suit filed by Chicago Alderman Thomas E. Keane, an ally of Mayor Richard J. Daley, who sought to defeat a challenge to the 59 uncommitted delegates he controls. Daley said the order "speaks for itself" and "upholds everything that has been said in our petition."

But the decision left the challengers, led by black civil-rights activist Jesse L. Jackson, one leg to stand on. Another rule inspired by the four-year-long reform effort, a ban on choosing delegates in a slate-making process closed to the party grass roots, was left standing.

Attorneys for the Daley foes said they will pursue the challenge on that basis.

In striking down the reform provisions, Judge Hart said, "When you try to provide you vote for, then you are getting into a communist or fascist form of government, not a republican form."

He said the national committee may require state parties to "take affirmative action" to increase minority participation in party affairs, but that state delegations may not be upset solely on the basis of numbers.

Hart's ruling was the first dealing with the legality of the new rules themselves, adopted by the committee only after reluctant party regulars were persuaded to go along. Previous rulings, including one in Philadelphia Monday, dealt only with specific delegation challenges.

Hart's order upset the process of resolving the 54 challenges currently pending against delegations in 25 states. The committee said those challenges involve 43 per cent of the 2,512 delegates already selected, or about one-third of the convention's total 3,016.

John Glanton, freshman coach

this year at Circleville Junior High, was awarded a contract to join the Westfall faculty as head football and reserve track coach and teach physical education and health. He holds a bachelor degree from Cumberland College and has four years teaching experience.

ALAN Gabriel, son of Alfred Gabriel, principal of Pickaway Twp. school, was offered a teaching job in the biological science department plus coaching varsity baseball and the reserve football team.

Eight teachers were hired on the elementary level, all but one having no previous experience. Employment was offered to:

Miss Pam Hoffman, BS from University of Cincinnati; Miss Theresa Hardy, BA from University of Toledo; Miss Linda Kempton, a Williamsport area resident, BS from Ohio University; Mrs. Doris Truax, BA from Louisiana State University, no experience in public school but taught in private schools, assigned to kindergarten here;

Mrs. Brenda Beam, BS from Ohio State University; Miss Cynthia Blum, BS Ohio State University; Miss Mary Jane Stein, BA from Capital University; Mrs. Laura Terbeck, BS from University of Cincinnati.

Others employed included: Mrs. Sharon Ann Selman, BA from University of Kentucky, eight year experience, junior high librarian; Mrs. Auden Jacobs, BA and MA from Eastern Kentucky University, special education; Mrs. Ann Ziegel, BS from Indiana University, junior high English.

Besides approving contracts for new personnel, the board accepted resignations from:

PAUL Hoskins, head baseball coach, athletic director and biology teacher; Mrs. Clara Paulus, special education teacher at Darby; Miss Sheridan Smith, Jackson elementary teacher;

Mrs. Margaret Cook and Mrs. Ruth Ann Shannon, bus drivers.

The board took action to inaugurate a single coverage Blue Cross program for non-certificated employees. Recently, it had approved similar coverage for teaching staff, effective the beginning of the coming school term. Employees must pay additional costs of family coverage.

Board members from the Westfall district include: James Dean, Mrs. Jeanne Lett, Bruce Stevenson Jr. and Cooke Metzger.

Battles Continue On Viet Fronts; Tanks Destroyed

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese marines firing light anti-tank weapons reported destroying five North Vietnamese tanks and damaging a sixth just before dawn today in a third day of fighting on the northernmost front.

Field reports said the Soviet-built tanks were destroyed 23 miles northwest of Hue on the strip of coastal land called the "Street Without Joy." The marines on Sunday launched a sweep there into Quang Tri Province, which the North Vietnamese captured May 1.

Nearly 50 U.S. B52 bombers attacked North Vietnamese troops positions, staging areas and supply depots on both sides of the demilitarized zone in the continuing aerial campaign to ward off an assault on Hue.

North Vietnam claimed that one of the big bombers was shot down north of the DMZ Monday, but the U.S. Command said it had no reports of any Stratofortresses downed or damaged.

Most of the strikes today were concentrated east and southeast of Quang Tri in support of the marine sweep north of the My Chanh River defense line.

The Saigon command said 123 North Vietnamese troops were killed in bunker-to-bunker fighting Monday, and that government losses were five marines killed and 23 wounded.

Other waves of B52s raided north of the DMZ, attacking rear bases 10 and 11 miles west and southwest of the port city of Dong Hoi.

More B52 bombers hammered North Vietnamese troop positions on South Vietnam's southern front three miles southwest of An Loc, where government forces are trying to reopen Highway 13 to the provincial capital.

Fighting continued on the highway at points four and seven miles south of An Loc.

Sato's Resignation To Spark Big Fight

TOKYO (AP) — The campaign to succeed Prime Minister Eisaku Sato is expected to be one of the most bitter in the history of the Liberal Democratic party, and some party officials say it may fracture the Conservative group that has governed Japan since 1948.

The party's 431 members in Parliament will begin electing a new party leader July 5, and the winner automatically becomes prime minister. Sato announced Saturday he was stepping down after nearly eight years in office.

Oxford Officer Fired; Wouldn't Be Deliveryman

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — A member of the Oxford police force for the past two years was officially dismissed Monday for allegedly having refused to deliver city council agendas.

Patrolman William Reynolds was charged by officials with refusing to deliver the agendas on three separate occasions. Reynolds claimed the orders were unlawful.

In a hearing last week before the Oxford Civil Service Commission, Reynolds said the charges were the result of animosity by a city official to whom he had issued two parking tickets. The official denied the charges.

The Oxford Civil Service Commission upheld the decision which Reynolds can now appeal in Butler County Common Pleas Court.

Final U.S. Combat Unit Comes Home

BIEN HOA, Vietnam (AP) — In a brief ceremony without speeches, the last American combat unit in South Vietnam furled its colors today and prepared for the trip home.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, and Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of the 3rd Military Region, headed the audience at the farewell for the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division's 3rd Brigade.

Brig. Gen. James F. Hamlet, the brigade's commander, was awarded the Distinguished from the Vietnamese.

The brigade remained behind last year when the division's other two brigades and the division headquarters left the war zone.

Operating well above normal brigade strength of 5,000 men, the unit patrolled areas in Bien Hoa, Long Khanh and Binh Tuy provinces to the east and northeast of Saigon.

A residual force of some 2,000 troops is to remain behind to guard the big Bien Hoa Air Base and other U.S. installations in the area.
